Three Die in B.C.

Blast of Air Fells Plane

PRINCETON (CP) — Three men died Friday when their light plane, apparently thrown out of control by hot air from a paving plant, crashed near the Hope-Princeton highway.

Police said they believe a strong updraft of air from containers of boiling tar caused the aircraft to plunge into the 51-mile range 400 yards from the plant.

Earl Malley, the pilot, Bob Ford and Jack Wyllie, all of the Vancouver area, were killed instantly.

The accident occurred in heavy fog and witnesses said the pilot appeared to be banking to avoid a low hill when he passed over the Western Paving Company.

FOUR SEATER

They were returning to Vancouver in the four-seater, Mark 21 Mooney aircraft from Trail, in the Kootenays.

The little plane slammed into the ground near Allison Pass Summit, just west of here and about 115 miles east of Vancouver. The crash scene was 100 yards from the highway.

HEAVY DRIZZLE

Ron Jones, a tractor operator for the B.C. highways department, said visibility was poor when the crash came at 9:25 a.m. PDT. "There was fog around the treetops and a heavy drizzle. The pilot probably didn't see the trees until it was too late."

Jones and two other men saw the plane bank to make a turn then disappear behind the trees. The sound of the crash followed.

MINE MACHINERY

Malley, 48, was western representative for the Presto-Tile Electrical Company. Ford, also 48, was a Second World War RCAF veteran. He was district manager of the Jeffrey Manufacturing Company of Burnaby, manufacturers of mining machinery. Wyllie ran a sewing machine business.

Fee Hike Will 'Spur' Calls for Medicare

The Birds And The Birds

VANCOUVER (CP)—The National Research Council, which experiments with anything, hopes birds can take care of the birds at Vancouver International Airport.

The council said Friday it plans to use specially-trained falcons to keep airport runways clear of ducks, pheasants and seagulls.

Falcons have been used for centuries for hunting game.

Socred Rebel Fears:

Quebec May Quit

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Guy Marcoux, Independent Social Credit member of Parliament for Quebec-Montmorency, said Friday Quebec may withdraw from Confederation within five years.

"The separatist movement might have separation within five years—if nothing happens to prove that separatism might be a tragedy and a nonsense," he said.

Because French-Canadians "seem to have been treated like second-class citizens," the average French-speaking person in Quebec has "a separatist feeling," Dr. Marcoux said, however, this could be eliminated by a rational explanation to "separatism." Only harm could come to Quebec and Canada if they split, he told a press conference.

Dr. Marcoux, who resigned from the Social Credit party, said many Social Credit candidates purposely misled voters during the last two federal elections.

"Are the doctors doing everything they can to avoid government intervention when they do a thing like that?"

"What will the public reaction be when they absorb the knowledge that medical fees will increase six per cent?"

Mr. Martin, whose stand on government medicare is that B.C. will participate in any federal plan, supported a recent decision by Medical Services Inc. to broaden the scope of its doctor-sponsored health plan.

"But when they raise fees, possibly out of reach, then the demand for government-sponsored medical schemes is going to increase."

The press conference was organized by the Press Institute of Canada and Dr. Marcoux was questioned by 20 newspaper men from across Canada.

Refugee Helpers Spurn B.C. So B.C. Helps No Refugees

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

The undernourished people of the world will eat B.C. food or stay hungry so far as the Premier's Committee for World Relief is concerned.

Health Minister Martin, the committee's reluctant chairman, said Friday it isn't going to spend its $50,000 provincial grant feeding hungry people with food produced anywhere else.

He said relief organizations

refuse to buy in B.C. as a condition of receiving the committee's money.

Couldn't the committee buy B.C. products and send them to a relief organization for distribution?

"And then not get it to the people who need it," was the minister's reply. "You'd lose control."

How about the United Nations?

"They'd distribute it where they like and buy it where they like."

Anyway, he added, relief organizations couldn't be trusted.

"I ran into a man in Sacramento."

Douglas Hails Liberals

VANCOUVER (CP)—T. C. Douglas said Friday the new Liberal government deserves credit for handling the business of Parliament effectively.

The New Democratic Party leader told a press conference the Liberals have shown themselves to be "a competent administration."

"Their conduct of House business has shown they know how to run a government," he said. "But the question remains, will it be competence without compassion?"

He said the real test will come when Finance Minister Gordon presents his budget next week. "Until then we won't know what their major decisions have been."

Job Plan Given By Grits

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal government unveiled its blueprint Friday for a high-level Economic Council of Canada to map out a planned route to economic growth and the highest possible level of employment.

The Commons authorized the government to present legislation to establish the council, then gave first reading to the formal bill spelling out what the council will do, how it will function and what its powers and membership will be.

THREE FULL-TIME

The government proposes to wipe out the National Productivity Council and create a brain trust of three full-time officers plus 25 other members on a part-time basis.

The National Productivity Council, consisting of 25 part-time members, was set up by the former Conservative government in 1961. It was to study methods of raising efficiency and production levels in industry.

The new council's job will be to plan the future in terms of economic growth, fullest possible employment and rising living standards.

"Planning, as we mean it," said Prime Minister Pearson, "is the key to the future."

Seaborne Force

Pearson Says No To NATO

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Friday turned down Canadian participation in the proposed NATO seaborne strategic nuclear force.

He did so the day after Livingston Merchant, U.S. special envoy, had come here for talks with Mr. Pearson and other government members on possible creation of a force of 25 surface ships armed with a total of 200 nuclear Polaris long-range missiles.

NEW COMMITTEE

Mr. Pearson said in the Commons in concluding a debate which resulted in unanimous approval of establishment of a Commons defence committee:

"I do not think it will be likely that we would wish to add to our existing responsibilities and commitments by participating in this kind of multi-lateral nuclear force."

"But this is a matter which will be given the consideration it deserves," he added.

PLAYS DIFENBAKER

Mr. Pearson spent more than an hour playing Opposition Leader Diefenbaker for denying that the previous Conservative government had committed Canada to a nuclear policy. He applied such terms as "defeatist nonsense," "an affront to anyone's intelligence" and "childish" to the former prime minister's arguments.

HAS REVENGE

Mr. Pearson, with the loud support of his followers, had his revenge on Mr. Diefenbaker for the Jan. 20, 1958, Commons debate in which the then prime minister picked Mr. Pearson apart for proposing that the government resign and the Liberals resume office without an election.

BILLION SPENT

There could be "nothing more stupid" now than to refuse the nuclear armament for the nuclear carriers on which the Conservatives had spent $1,000,000,000 of the taxpayers' money.

In the "next few months" the government would re-examine the nuclear bombing role of the RCAF air division in Europe.

NDF QUERY

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre): "Does the present government still feel that the decision of the previous government to acquire nuclear weapons was a mistake?"

Mr. Pearson: "Yes, at the time it was made it was a mistake. There was a better role for Canada to perform at that time and there may be a better role for Canada to perform in the future."

Japanese Omit Key Idea

WASHINGTON (CP)—Japan Friday submitted to Canada and the United States the draft of a proposed new treaty to replace the current 30-year conservation convention protecting halibut and salmon in the North Pacific Ocean.

A statement issued by the conferees said the Japanese draft omits the principle of abstinence which Canada and the U.S. claim is vital and which the Japanese claim as "irrational" in its present form.

The three countries now are negotiating behind closed doors to prevent the current fisheries convention from collapsing, a development the Canadians claim could wreck the Canadian salmon industry.

North Pole Sees First

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—Two Americans have become the first aviators to land single-engine airplanes at the North Pole, the University of Alaska said Friday.

The pilots were Bob Fisher, chief pilot for the Arctic research laboratory, and Cliff Alder, another laboratory pilot. The laboratory is operated by the university for the office of naval research.

Knighthood for a Dancer High Honor for a Boxer

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth Friday bestowed the female equivalent of knighthood on prima ballerina Alicia Markova and diplomat Barbara Salt, who had both legs amputated after being appointed Britain's first woman ambassador.

Both women became dame commanders of the Order of the British Empire in the traditional list of honors issued to celebrate the Queen's official birthday.

There were 132 women on the list of 680 honors—a list that included people prominent in the arts, politics, scholarship, science, sport and industry.

Also named a dame commander of OBE was Jean Conan Doyle, an air commandant and director of the British Women's Air Force and daughter of novelist Arthur Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes.

DICK TIGER, MBE
... on Queen's list

Among those given knighthoods was historian D. W. Brogan, Britain's best-known authority on American constitutional and political affairs and a frequent visitor to the United States.

World middleweight boxing champion Dick Tiger of Nigeria, 33, who defends his title July 13 in Nigeria against ex-champion Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, was made a member of the Order of the British Empire for his "services to boxing."

William Travers Alden, 38, a Toronto-born member of the British Parliament since 1950, was made a knight commander of the Order of the British Empire for political and public services.

Sir Patrick Dean, permanent British representative at the United Nations, was made a knight grand cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

Labor Eyes Security

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press

Former war minister John Profumo, much to his personal regret, is treating Britons to the richest dish of scandal in years.

See also Page 3.

When the last savory tidbit of sex and high-level deceit has been warmed over for the last time by a gleeful popular press, certain ominous odors will still linger in the air.

The most important question is the effect Profumo's affair with 21-year-old model Christine Keeler will have on the government and its calculations concerning the next election.

Prime Minister Macmillan, currently golfing in Scotland, is reported to be taking the matter calmly despite signs that the opposition intends to pin much of the blame on him.

Labor Leader Harold Wilson has indicated his party will skirt the personal issues and concentrate on security.

Little good is being said about Profumo himself. While other cabinet ministers of this century have been involved in public scandals, he is the first to be caught up in something so blatantly sordid and casual.

On top of this, there is a feeling that he behaved extremely badly by trying to cover his tracks, lying to Parliament and generally "not being a man about the business."

Other observers think Profumo's indiscretions have added weight to the criticism that the government has grown lax during its long term in power; that

It is hard to estimate what the public reaction will be when the dust settles. On the one hand there is the sardonic comment heard in bars that, unlike other recent government scandals which have involved homosexuals, "at least this time it's a girl."

Other observers think Profumo's indiscretions have added weight to the criticism that the government has grown lax during its long term in power; that ministers are beginning to feel no one can touch them.

The Conservatives are already under fire for turning Britain into what some Labor members say is a nation of loose-living materialists.

Profumo has shown that the "never had it so good" way of life can be rotten at the top, too.

Whether Macmillan is planning a fall or spring election, a careful reconsideration of policy is vital.

Death Rioting Sequel

125 State Troopers, Thunderstorm Cool Race Tensions

LEXINGTON, N.C. (UPI)—A massive show of force and a thunderstorm cooled tensions here Friday night in the wake of bloody racial rioting that left one white man dead and another wounded.

A force of 125 state troopers moved through the town one to a car and bumper to bumper, with military precision. Small groups of young whites, who had congregated despite an appeal to stay off the streets, scurried for shelter when a heavy rainstorm swept the city in the evening.

In Jackson, Miss., Negroes staged anti-segregation demonstrations despite a state court injunction prohibiting them and Negro entertainers Dick Gregory and Lena Horne arrived in town to bolster the desegregation drive.

At Tuscaloosa, Ala., state troopers moved onto the University of Alabama campus and prepared for entrance of the school's first Negro students since Autherine Lucy met with bloody rioting in 1954.

Lettuce Inside Tomato

CUSTER PARK, Ill. (UPI)—Mrs. Lucille Quayle cut open a tomato to make a salad and found a folded dollar bill in it.

"We're just baffled," she said. "Nobody can come up with any real logical explanation."

She said the tomato was one of a half-dozen she bought at the town's only general store.

Sub Bases 'Hostages'

MOSCOW (UPI)—Nikita Khrushchev declared in an interview published yesterday that the Soviet Union is keeping nuclear rockets trained on Mediterranean nations which harbor U.S. nuclear submarines.

The Soviet Union recently proposed declaring the Mediterranean a nuclear-free zone. The United States replied that this was an effort by the Russians to reduce western strength with no comparative reduction of Soviet strength.

Khrushchev noted that the United States formerly had stationary nuclear rocket sites only in Italy and Turkey. He said now the United States plans to make "hostages" of all the Mediterranean countries.

"The Soviet Union has no other choice but to keep its nuclear rocket weapons aimed at the routes of the movement of NATO submarines and also at the coasts of the NATO member countries and equally the countries which grant their territories to this bloc for permanent or periodical basing of nuclear rocket weapons," he said.

There was speculation that Khrushchev decided to put off the trip to avoid clouding the atmosphere of the Sino-

Soviet peace talks. Communist China announced it had postponed a meeting of its People's Congress, the country's highest legislative body, until next week because of the talks which are due to open July 5 in Moscow.

'Hot Line' Still Cool

GENEVA (UPI)—The Russians said Friday that final agreement still is lacking on the establishment of a "hot line" communications link between Washington and Moscow to prevent accidental nuclear war.

Soviet disarmament negotiator Gennady Tatarov said "not everything is settled."

Trapped Trio Escape Cave

AUBENAS, France (AP)—Three young explorers staggered exhausted from a cave Friday where they had been trapped for five days by a flooded underground river that claimed the life of at least one of their two companions.

Rescue workers built a temporary dam near the cave mouth to divert the water. They brought out one body.

Embarrassed Parents Give Young the Needle

LONDON (AP)—British parents too embarrassed to tell their offspring the facts of life can do it by phonograph record.

The long-playing record The Wonderful Story of How You Were Born went on sale Friday. It is intended for 11 and 12-year-olds and has been approved by church leaders, educationalists and child psychologists.

IT MAY BE THAT the Archer report on the efficiency and the future operations of the Greater Victoria police forces contains nothing that calls for drastic changes in law enforcement in the area. Or the opposite may be true. Whatever the case, however, the weeks-long delay in making the report public, with its findings known to a growing but still limited number of persons in elective and senior administrative office, can hardly be counted a good way of doing business.

This perhaps is recognized in Mayor Wilson's expressed hope that the provincial government will release the report as soon as possible, while the attorney-general's department apparently would like it to be accepted that the delay is on behalf of the Greater Victoria municipal authorities, and that the Victoria police commission—of which the mayor is chairman—may be the one to make the release.

The slow procedure in any event is bound to breed rumor, the more so the longer the report is withheld from view and its observations and recommendations are hinted at in various ways but remain classed as confidential.

Proliferating rumor is the enemy of morale and efficiency in any organization, and beyond that the policemen of the city may well feel that the withholding of the report tends to cast a shadow on them without justification.

In this case, the "courtesy" of keeping the Archer findings from the public at such length, while they are studied and discussed by municipal representatives in private, would seem to have been overdone, to the point of being a discourtesy to the police forces and to the taxpayers.

Missing Partner

THE BELIEF of Canadian Fisheries Minister H. J. Robichaud that negotiations aimed at bringing the Russians into the North Pacific Fisheries Conservation Convention would not prove satisfactory at this stage strikes a discouraging note. This opinion he expressed in a press conference in connection with the current talks in which Japan has called for substitution of a more "relaxed" conservation formula than the one under which she now abstains from fishing for salmon in the eastern Pacific and for halibut and herring on the high seas off North American shores except where these fisheries are shown to be not exploited by Canada and the United States, the other two parties to the convention.

One of Japan's main arguments in seeking a relaxation of the abatement rules to which she voluntarily has bound herself under the agreement—and from which by terminating her partnership she could escape—is that the growing Russian fishing fleets in the North Pacific are not governed in the least by the treaty, the Soviet Union not being a signatory, and that hence Japanese abstention is being brought to naught.

The argument must be admitted to have considerable strength already, although neither Canada nor the United States could welcome further Japanese competition in the eastern part of the ocean; but it can only gain strength as increasingly the Soviet fleets take fish without discrimination or regard for rights as defined by the parties to the convention. This can be expected, however, and so also in due course may be an invasion of fleets from Communist China unless a firmer pattern of international co-operation in conserving and apportioning the resources of the high seas between the continents is set before them.

The United States and Canada cannot bring the pressure to bear on Russia that they can on Japan, as a friendly democracy and in the field of trade, to co-operate. But should the present agreement collapse, even though that might give the Soviet Union a cold-war gain in the immediate damage it would do to the Canadian and American industries and the friction it would cause between friends across the ocean, the long-term result would undoubtedly be to the detriment of all the nations on the shores of the North Pacific, including the Russians.

Thus there is an avenue of appeal to Russia, and clearly Canada should be doing all in its power to bring the Soviet Union into the agreement. Perhaps, however, the minister's use of the expression, "at this stage" is a hopeful sign in this respect.

Person to Person

THEY ARE STILL working on the idea of a private teletype line between the two chiefs of the cold war, President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev. The former has approved the proposition and the Soviet leader is expected to agree.

This direct teletype contact is designed to offset, or at least lessen, the risk of nuclear war by accident or premature development. The Cuban crisis is said to have shown that events moved faster than communications between Washington and Moscow, with the imperiling possibility of the situation getting out of hand before these leaders might jointly intervene to avoid open conflict.

Anything that can be set up to help avoid the calamity of war is to be welcomed.

Never before in history was it more vital that rapid consultation or communication between the executive heads of states should be operable, so that the point of no return might not be reached simply because regular channels of contact were too slow to cope with the situation.

Better still it would be were there a direct private telephone link between the White House and the Kremlin, or alternately to other locations where Mr. Kennedy and Mr. Khrushchev would be quickly available, except that the barrier of language is a stumbling block that is bypassed by coded teletype messages.

Would that all great leaders of state were linguists, so that they could communicate in person verbally and direct, and thus avoid the pitfalls of misinterpretation, as well as having more freedom to speak their minds. As it is they are to a degree at the mercy of interpreters.

The Advisers

MR. DOUGLAS: A supplementary question. May I ask if the "two active fishermen" who are to accompany the delegation will be nominated by fishermen's organizations?

Mr. Robichaud: No, Mr. Speaker. In delegations of this kind it is not the practice of the government to appoint representatives from organizations as such. We will appoint two active fishermen . . . Mr. Nowlan: Two active Liberals.

Pakistan Government Course

Enlightened and Moderate

By GUY WINT

THE transformation of Pakistan's military dictatorship, established in 1959, into some kind of democratic government is now well under way.

Government by martial law has ceased. It was brought to an end by President Ayub Khan himself, now constitutional president. True, it is a presidential rather than a parliamentary democracy, but even the opposition members of the new National Assembly concede that there is some form of popular control.

Most members are not opposed to Ayub Khan remaining president. And they are genuinely surprised and relieved at the non-violence of his dictatorship.

The new constitution provides that the president, elected separately from Parliament, shall remain in office for a fixed period. The failure of governments to enjoy a fixed term was, in Ayub Khan's view, the cause of the malady of the state. Also the constitution, by putting a certain distance between the executive and the legislature, seems to ensure that the executive has a chance of keeping itself free from the corruption which, he believes, is bound to ramify out of a legislature in Pakistani society.

The new Parliament is elected indirectly by the "basic democrats" chosen, one for every thousand of the population, by regulations which prohibit organized party action. The parties nevertheless forced their way in, and about half the members of the assembly are old-style politicians.

Ayub Khan has attempted, though with uncharacteristically little vigor, to organize the counter force in a strong party of government called the Muslim League Conventionalist Party, and two assembly sessions have been held without executive and the legislature colliding.

The influence of the Mullahs is still strong. It was enough to put an end to Ayub Khan's attempt to run Pakistan as a secular state. There is hardly anything except Islam which unites the two halves of the country.

But if East Pakistan is divided from the West, it is also divided itself, between Muslims and Hindus. The Hindu population lives a depressed and frightened life. But there have been no communal riots; the army and police have orders to prevent them.

On these are domestic matters. On relations with India the meeting of the assembly has also a bearing. Its leaders wished to appear better custodians of the national cause than the executive. Moreover, when China proposed the delimitation of the frontier, public opinion was overwhelmingly in favor of acceptance. In fact the agreement offered was so tempting that it would have been suicidal of the Pakistan foreign office to have turned it down.

The thing which impresses the visitors most about Pakistan is the army. The air force too is excellent. But the civil service is one of the curiosities in the country. It inherited very little of the Indian civil service. It was subjected to a dreadful strain during the maladministration and corruption which preceded the present regime. Yet it clung on to enough of a tradition to be able to re-create the public services.

The young men settle reasonably well. And the old men maintain the standards of the ICS. But there is a disastrous gap between the superior civil service and the bulk of government employees. These are extremely incompetent, and it is a wonder that any body of men compelled to work through such instruments can remain sane.

The superior officer is comelled to take over the whole work himself, and is grossly overworked. He can leave nothing to his subordinates.

This can lead to corruption. But how to deal with corruption in Pakistan is a matter which has defeated everyone.

Pakistan is a country with a small class of exceedingly rich men, a small middle class, and an enormous class of the desperately poor. The people are desperate for money. It is only necessary to imagine conducting a police force in these conditions to see what a strain the country is subject to.

There are many weaknesses and shortcomings in Pakistan. Its future is unstable. Its people bear all the signs of neurosis. Its economy seems thoroughly unbalanced. But the actual things being done by the government are enlightened and moderate.

For Adenauer

Difficult Choice

By NORA BELOFF from London

WHEN General de Gaulle visits Chancellor Adenauer at the beginning of next month, he is expected to confront the German leader with a difficult choice.

He will tell him that either he must repudiate Vice-Chancellor Erhard's pro-British policy or the general will have no more use for the Common Market.

In principle the Rome Treaty is indisputable; in practice a rigidly unco-operative attitude by any of the major powers can paralyze the projected economic union.

Things went badly for the French at the recent Brussels conference of foreign ministers, when all their partners ganged up against them and in favor of regular meetings of the Six and Britain.

But the French are still confident when it comes to the crunch the chancellor will once again succumb to General de Gaulle.

Another meeting of the six foreign ministers will be held on June 17. Between now and then the commission and the smaller delegations will try to work out a face-saving formula, but both Vice-Chancellor Erhard and Foreign Minister Couve de Murville are convinced the matter cannot be settled until their leaders meet in July.

The collision seems to have been the consequence of an unexpected toughening on the German side.

French sources said that there will be no modification of the French attitude. Although they agree with their partners that in the long run Britain should come in, they say the subject cannot be reopened "for several years."

The French protest, with some justice, that the quarrel has been wrongly presented in London and Washington as a division between the outward and the inward-looking — or the protectionist and the Liberal — members of the community.

On agriculture, now the principal point of conflict, the French are more liberal than the Germans. And before reaching new agreement on raising the levy on poultry, which has caused such a furore in Washington, the French got four of their partners to agree to a more accommodating formula. The veto this time was by the Germans.

Officials in Bonn assert bravely that the federal government was not too disheartened by the new French veto of Brussels on closer links between the Common Market and Britain. They are still moderately optimistic about the prospects of a British stopgap with the market.

Washington Calling

Perilous Period

By MARQUIS CHILDS

IT IS AN axiom of diplomacy that an ambassador can be no more effective than the policy of the government he represents.

There are, to be sure, variants — the stereotype of the ugly American as against the conventional diplomat out of the era of protocol and striped pants. But within these limits, if the policy back home does not fit the need, then the ambassador can do little more than make gestures of goodwill.

Chester Bowles is preparing to depart for India to be ambassador for the second tour of duty in New Delhi at a moment when the question of policy is of critical importance. It is a moment when the whole future of India — and, therefore, of American policy in Asia — is uncertain. This is the moment when the bills for past errors, illusions and follies, American as well as Indian, come due.

Red China's goal in the attack last year was to prove to all of Southeast Asia that India was not merely a paper tiger but in following the path of democracy and representative government was doomed to abysmal failure. Conquering Tibet, building roads in the high Himalayas, overwhelming India's feeble border defences, the Communist dictatorship was out to show that China is the dominant power in Asia today and the wave of the future.

India's neighbors have been shaken by this demonstration. In the ideological contest with Moscow, Red China is thrusting outward to control the Communist parties of Asia. It looms ever larger as the force to be reckoned with.

Against this background, New Delhi sent a mission to Washington headed by T. T. Krishnamachari, minister of defence and economic co-ordination. We must begin to build up at once for another attack which we believe will come quite soon; we cannot wait for you to rush to our defences after we have been attacked. This was the urgent appeal to American officialdom. We need to equip more than 40 mountain divisions, we need supersonic jets because of the limitations on part of 45 air squadrons and we need to lay the industrial base for our own military supply lines.

While this formidable list was not presented officially, it was made known. Along with a swiftly stepped-up military program, the American government is likely to have to increase its share of the money supplied by an international consortium to carry out India's latest economic plan, to continue providing out of contingency funds the military supplies launched at the time of last year's attack and provide a loan for the Bokaro steel plant President Kennedy has called essential to future development.

These requests coincide with a growing distrust in Congress of foreign aid. That is compounded by a long-standing distrust of India, going back to neutralism and the irritant of V. K. Krishna Menon, who

The Royal Navy's aircraft carrier Queen Elizabeth was destroyed with a loss of 1,200 lives 23 years ago today — in 1940 — during the evacuation of Allied forces from Narvik in the Second World War.

With the carrier, two British destroyers also were lost, in the action in which the German battleship Scharnhorst and the pocket battleship Gneisenau took part. Some 28 men escaped and a few were taken prisoner.

Educational Talk

ON the "7 o'Clock Show" of Vancouver CBC a member of the staff of the faculty of education at UBC was interviewed about programming and teaching machines.

At one point in the interview she spoke about "getting the most optimum effect" and at another point about "maximizing" something or other.

If such gibberish is tolerated at an institution where teachers are trained, perhaps education would be safer in the hands of machines after all.

Fine Response

May I express to the citizens of Greater Victoria the heartfelt thanks of the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded for their generous response to our recent tag day. A total of $2,017.50 was collected, a substantial contribution toward the operating expenses of this organization which relies entirely on voluntary subscriptions for its very existence.

Special thanks must also go to those organizations and individuals who volunteered their time and efforts on behalf of the "Quiet Ones." Each year the many young people who respond to our need for taggers is most heartening and encouraging. The awakening within our society of an awareness of the problems of the mentally retarded is one of the principal aims of this association; this response would certainly indicate that there are many among us who not only recognize some of these problems but are prepared to materially assist in the work that has to be done.

L. COTTRELL, President.

Space Prayers

For a change of pace, Tom Taylor's column, "Thinking Aloud," treats of space men and their associations with their God. And with astronaut Major Gordon Cooper's particular prayer included. Of course we honor such men.

But surely they can never quite understand the orthodox mind which puts God on one hand and itself on the other, separating the Creator from His creation, so to speak. An impossibility. Creation being the offspring of a Creator. For, if we take life as a whole, the thesis that "I and my Father are one" is self-evident and of equal application. Otherwise we should all be dead.

It seems incredible that we should deny our divinity before a Creator whose image and likeness we mirror. And regardless of how far we may stray from the paths of rectitude.

In a nutshell, wherever we look we find God but the trick is to find Him as we are.

So it would appear that all prayer is an expression (deriving from and directed to the thought or idea of God which we individually) carry in ourselves and (in this sense) understandable, yet inexplicable.

Mystery at 15, Scandal at 21

By COLIN FROST

LONDON (AP) — In London underworld lingo, the girl is a mystery.

She arrives at one of the big railroad terminals, a youngster from the provinces, suitcase in hand, lost look on a pretty face.

Behind her lies perhaps a broken-love affair, perhaps a broken home.

A man approaches. Slick dresser, she thinks.

Talk Starts It

"How about a cup of coffee?" Okay, she says, and the talk starts. Is she looking for a room? She is. He has one.

For some it means bar-propping in sordid drinking dens. For others, stripping. For others, organized prostitution.

For Christine Keeler, a mystery at 15 and centre of an international political scandal at 21. It meant intimate acquaintance with men of power, mixed with violent love affairs with West Indian Negroes.

No Longer Corny

"From being a corny 15-year-old shop girl," she once said, "I now know diplomats, film and stage stars, some of Europe's wealthiest men and members of the aristocracy." Christine is slender, red-haired and gay. On arriving in London from her home at Staines she tried modelling. Then she went to work in a night club.

Interesting Men

She was promoted from waitress to showgirl "and then," she says, "I began to meet my first interesting male companions."

One was Stephen Ward, 42-year-old osteopath and artist, who has said his patients include half the British cabinet. Ward has a cottage beside the Thames on Lord Astor's estate at Cliveden, one of England's stately homes and always a centre of political house parties.

Met at Pool

John Profumo, Britain's war minister until his career collapsed in ruins this week, met Christine at Lord Astor's swimming pool.

Mandy Rice-Davies, Christine's 18-year-old friend, tells of life by the Thames. "In those delightful weekends at the cottage, Christine and I got on first-name terms with lots of important people, mostly in the diplomatic and political fields," she said.

Red Naval Man

One of them was Yevgeny Ivanov, an assistant naval attaché at the Soviet Embassy. He, like Profumo, used to meet Christine at Ward's London apartment.

Mandy's history is similar to Christine's though less turbulent. Birmingham shopgirl at 15, club waitress at 16, rich man's mistress at 16½, with a Jaguar, mink and diamonds for her 17th birthday.

Her protector, a statesman Pole who owned a large slice of West London, died of a heart attack in 1962.

Call Girl Case

At Scotland Yard's request, Mandy cut short a continental holiday last month and came back to Britain. Newspapers have said she is helping uncover a call girl ring involving dozens of girls.

Mandy herself said on June 1: "I can say that probably a number of well known people will be involved."

Men Were Naked

Mandy has talked of one gay little party she went to where the host who opened the door wore nothing but his socks.

"Then," she said, "there was a dinner party where a naked man wearing a mask waited on table like a slave. He had to have a mask because he was so well known."

So much for the high life. Christine Keeler had a taste for low life too.

Often she would disappear from her West End haunts and turn up in drinking clubs packed with West Indian immigrants.

West Indian Lover

She took a West Indian lover, 34-year-old John Edgcombe. She discarded him. He followed her to Ward's apartment and tried to shoot his way in.

Edgcombe got seven years. Rumors started flying.

On Friday another Jamaican ex-lover, jazz singer Lucky Gordon, got three years for attacking her.

Lied for Redhead

Between times John Profumo, brilliant politician and husband of actress Valerie Hobson, had lied in Parliament to cover his affair with the redhead.

This week his career collapsed in ruins, with his lie exposed and the Conservative government rocking.

As Christine herself once said:

"The trouble is I am young and photogenic. If I'd been 32 and a suburban housewife it would never have happened."

Questioned by Scotland Yard officers about what went on in their apartment in London's West End, Mandy Rice-Davies, 18-year-old party girl, is roommate of Christine Keeler.

Was Security Breached? Asks Labor

LONDON (Reuters)—The opposition Labor party has decided to demand assurances from Prime Minister Macmillan that the sensational Profumo scandal did not involve any breach of national security.

The opposition demand will be made when the recessed Parliament resumes sitting June 17. Macmillan's Conservative government is almost certain to agree to Labor's move to force a debate on the case—most lurid British political scandal in years.

ADQUATE PROBE?

Labor wants to know whether an adequate security inquiry was made in 1961 when red-haired model Christine Keeler, 21, was by her own admission having simultaneous illicit affairs with War Minister John Profumo and Russian naval attaché Capt. Eugene Ivanov, a suspected Soviet spy.

The party also will ask how the inquiry was affected by Profumo's sudden resignation as war minister last Wednesday, when he admitted he had lied to Parliament earlier to cover his affair with the pretty model.

Labor is sure to attack Macmillan—head of the nation's security—for his handling of the case and to ask how much British military intelligence told him about it before Profumo's resignation.

On the moral aspects—both political and sexual—of the case, the opposition seems as ready as the government to ring down the curtain on what is regarded as Profumo's personal tragedy.

STORY STIES SCANDAL

But the security aspect of the scandal assumed even larger proportions with Christine's admission in an interview with the London Daily Express that on two occasions Profumo and Ivanov visited her the same day.

Newspapers point to Ivanov's acquaintance with Dr. Stephen Ward, the society osteopath who introduced Christine to Profumo, his frequent appearance at parties given by the "Ward circle" and the espionage rumors that followed his recall to Moscow.

Jamaican jazz singer Aloysius (Lucky) Gordon, still another of Christine's one-time boyfriends, was sentenced to three years in jail by a London judge for beating up the model.

Profumo Is Excused From Palace Rite

LONDON (Reuters)—Former War Minister John Profumo today was excused at his own request from attending a retiring cabinet minister's traditional audience with the Queen.

Profumo was to have seen the Queen Tuesday to hand over his seals of office.

'Won't Come Quickly'—Martin

Private Mental Care Under Study for B.C.

The provincial government may get out of the business of providing mental health care.

Health Minister Eric Martin said yesterday the government is giving "very serious consideration" to such a move.

WILL TAKE TIME

But he warned that it wouldn't come quickly. A Canadian Mental Health Association report resulting from six years of study has recommended placing the responsibility for mental illness care on the local community level the same as general illness care.

"To get out of it," said the minister, "time and careful preparation are required. The system has been built up over generations and cannot be changed immediately."

Evidence means a severe penalty and there are no appeals, says the Sun.

The recommendation comes at an awkward time for the government and is likely to require an early policy decision.

In recent years B.C. has embarked on a program of decentralization of mental health services and regional centres have been opening up.

STAFF PROBLEM

These are staffed by civil servants, and one of the CMHA suggestions is that private psychiatrists and staff should take over from government employees.

Mr. Martin said the decentralization move has been going ahead as fast as the supply of new qualified staff will permit.

The question now is whether the government will slow down the program pending a decision on the report.

FEDERAL AID NEEDED

The proposed new scheme could not go ahead without federal aid, the minister said.

Present B.C. policy is for psychiatric wards in general hospitals to accept acute mental illness cases under B.C. Hospital Insurance Service coverage.

But Ottawa would have to contribute before all mental services could be put under B.C.H.S., said Mr. Martin.

LOOK TO LIBERALS

The Conservative government would not do this, but the minister hoped the Liberals would take a different view.

Meanwhile, decentralization was paying off.

Mr. Martin said regional centres in Kamloops and the Okanagan have enabled more patients to be treated at home.

Admissions to Esquimalt have dropped sharply.

Going to Denmark

COPENHAGEN (Reuters)—U.S. Vice-President Lyndon Johnson and his wife have been invited to Denmark on an official visit this September, the foreign minister announced.

Board Turns On Heat And Distilleries Boil

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Sun says the B.C. Liquor Control Board is turning the heat on breweries and distilleries and its getting hotter.

Armed with vast power, the Vancouver afternoon newspaper says, LCB agents are cracking down on customer promoting schemes; acting swiftly on rumors; conducting closed hearings—acting silently and with severity.

The key complaint, the story says, is that breweries and distilleries can't promote their brands, except on a limited scale.

Manufacturers talk of forming an association to pool their complaints, press for overhaul of the Liquor Act and establish and police an industry code of ethics.

Liquor industry officials claim the board, under commissioner Col. Donald McGugan, is like a dictatorship, harsh and without understanding.

Swedish Expert Warns

Hunger Threatens World Cataclysm

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Swedish expert said Friday that while half the world looks for relief from hunger the poor nations are bogged down in their own corruption and rich nations treat aid as a cold war investment.

K. Gunnar Myrdal, best known in this country for his writing on U.S. race relations, told the 100-nation World Food Congress that failure to meet the problem of the world's underfed could result in an "economic and political cataclysm." The economist-sociologist is a professor of economics at Stockholm University.

Myrdal said rich nations are getting richer, and poor nations are growing poorer. He said the trend "has actually become even more pronounced in the last few years."

Myrdal said the great value of the food congress, meeting under the sponsorship of the UN Food and Agriculture Organization, could be to make the world aware of the "tremendously dangerous situation" posed by world hunger.

DEVELOP SLOWLY

He said newly-emerging nations are developing slowly because of "corruption in government, administration and business," particularly with regard to land reform which could raise farm productivity.

At the same time, he said, "there is a world-wide conspiracy preserving" confusion between grants and loans to the poorer countries. He said loans are made to appear as grants "and it is always pleasant to appear to be charitable when it does not cost anything or even happens to be a very profitable business."

U.S. RAPID

Leaders of the U.S. are "eager to stress... that foreign aid is in the nature of subsidies in the cold war, a way of saving military expenditures by the U.S.," Myrdal said. "I have always been convinced that to a large part this is a self-deception of the type I have called preverted puritanism."

STUDEBAKER — LARK — HAWK — WAGONAIRE — AVANTI — STUDEBAKER — LARK — HAWK — WAGONAIRE — AVANTI

ON THE FAIRWAYwith
MAX FAULKNER

Never in the history of golfing conflict in Great Britain have so many professionals missed so few of the major sponsored tournaments. But before some promoter preens himself and puts it down to his new, aluring after-shave lotion I take it upon myself to tell him—and you—the inside story.

The fact is that many British pros are among the laziest in the world. Most of them can make a comfortable living from their club appointments and don't really take the tournament circuit seriously. The odd few pounds of prize money are perks. Personally I detest laziness only second to lack of ambition. But I have to confess that they have a point. For years British prize money has amounted to poor-box offerings compared with the rewards on the American circuit.

The only other major prize to play for is a place in the Ryder Cup team. These places, or generally the top seven or eight, are decided on points awarded tournament by tournament. It follows, therefore, that the top money-winners, the Bernard Hants, the Harry Weetmans, the Peter Allises, are also automatically the first men selected for the Ryder Cup.

In other words, seven or eight men are carving up the treasure between them. And what's wrong with that? They're the best players.

What has been wrong as long as I've been connected with the game is the lack of incentive for the next 10 or 15 best players behind them—the guys who are picking up $50 here, $100 there and then hitting a lean spell. The chances of them breaking through may be remote and so suddenly they they don't really care any more.

Fewer and fewer dedicate themselves to pushing the big boys as golf stands still. Which is one of the best reasons I know why Britain has won the Ryder Cup only once since 1931.

Incentive from Canada

But now, at last, there is incentive. From British promoters? No. It comes from Canada. A Canadian brewing company has decided to promote the tournament to end all tournaments. With complete justification, it intends to call it the World Open and it will be staged for the first time in America next year.

But just note this: the first 20 British players in their own points table will be invited to compete. They will be guaranteed $150 before they've hit a single shot.

Should they finish first their prize money will be $12,500. And should they manage to scrape into 12th place the reward will be $1,000—more than I received for winning the British Open in 1951.

Never before has the scramble to finish in the top 20 in the British order-of-merit table been so hot. By a very simple expedient, the closed shop has been prised open and you won't find any of the pros missing tournaments at which points are awarded.

There is little doubt that this fantastic World Open jamboree is going to revolutionize tournament management. The total prize money will be somewhere in the region of $71,000 for 72 holes of stroke play.

For the first two years it will be staged in the United States. But in 1966 it will come to Britain. I'm afraid that the British Open, with something like a tenth of the prize money, is going to be made to look like a village flower show in comparison.

Here's to Henry Cotton

But, as a player, my allegiance must remain with the players. The status that golf professionals enjoy today is largely through the efforts of one man—Henry Cotton.

At the height of his fame he might easily have said to blazes with the rest. But he didn't. He fought for better conditions and better rewards and it is now up to players of my generation to carry on with the fight.

Britain cannot, of course, hope to match the vast American prize list where tournaments like the Colonial National and the Memphis Open Invitation each puts up cash awards of $15,000.

In all $700,000 was passed out in prize money in the States last year, a little more than ten times that which was put up in Britain. Okay, we can't compete, but at least we might start doing something to bridge the gap.

That, believe me, will be the only way to raise standards. When you've got $10,000 on a putt you're prepared to practise seven hours a day, seven days a week.

But at least a start has been made. Twenty of Britain's top men will be flying off next year in search of the end of the rainbow. And should one of them win then all I can say is he'll have found it.

Speaking Briefly

Boros Leads Buick Open

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP)—Julius Boros birdied four of the first five holes Friday and set a first-round record with a six-under par 23-4-66 to take a two-stroke lead in the $52,000 Buick Open golf tournament.

Boros snatched the lead from Jerry Pittman, 26, whose 68 had blood for more than four hours.

At 69 were Al Mengert, Bob Charles and former U.S. Open champion Gene Littler.

Sevens were bracketed at 70 and 14 were tied at 71. These included George Knudson of Toronto.

The jam at 70 included Miller Barber, Bo Wininger, Dutch Finsterwald, Jim Ferree, Dave Harrison, Jack Fleck and Don Whitt.

Champion
Rodriguez
Underdog

NEW YORK (AP)—Welterweight champion Luis Rodriguez, winner of his last 12 fights, is a 13-to-10 underdog for his return title bout with ex-champion Emile Griffith of New York tonight.

The odds may narrow down to even money by the time the fast-punching 167-pounder climb into the Madison Square Garden ring for the 15-round contest.

Rodriguez, a clever boxer with nimble feet and shifty moves, dethroned the two-time champion on a unanimous but close 15-round decision at Los Angeles March 21.

Griffith hopes to become the first boxer ever to win the welterweight title three times.

England Faces Big Task
After West Indies Declares

MANCHESTER, England (Reuters)—The West Indies, avoiding all risks and batting strictly to orders, amassed the formidable total of 501 for six wickets declared on the second day of the first cricket Test Friday.

To emphasize the domination of bat, England's openers replied with 31 for no wicket by the close.

In two days 532 runs have been scored and bowlers have taken only five wickets.

Conrad Hunt, West Indies vice-captain who batted all the first day for 104, was again the central figure Friday. He was at the crease for eight hours and 24 minutes while making 182 out of 388. He hit 27 boundaries.

Garfield Sobers with 64 and Frank Worrell, the captain, with 74 not out, were the other mainstays of the touring team's batting.

Hunt and Sobers, resuming with score at 244 for three, started Friday with such care that only 29 runs came in the first hour. Then Sobers warmed to his natural attacking game and hit two superb sixes as well as four fours before being caught trying another big hit.

England's bowlers performed creditably on a pitch which gave them not the slightest encouragement. David Allen, the Gloucestershire off-spinner, matched Hunt's marathon effort with two bowling spells of 90 minutes and he was rewarded with the wickets of both Sobers and Hunt.

John Edrich and his Surrey colleague Mike Stewart had no difficulty weathering the West Indies opening assault of Wes Hall and Charlie Griffith when England began their reply.

Drysdale's steady hurling, snapped Chicago Cubs' five-game win string 4-1 Friday.

The defeat jolted the sizzling Cubs out of a tie for first place in the National League.

The Cubs had won 11 of their previous 13 starts.

Drysdale, fanning nine to boost his league-leading strikeout total to 99, scattered seven Cub hits and yielded only an unearned run in the fifth. It was Drysdale's seventh victory against six defeats.

The loser was Paul Toth, making his first Cub start of the season.

Toth was almost a match for Drysdale until lifted for Barney Schultz at the start of the eighth.

ONE BAD INNING
Toth had only one bad inning, the fifth, when the Dodgers picked up two runs without getting the ball out of the infield for a 2-0 lead.

Willie Davis opened the fifth with the second of his three singles, stole second, took third on Drysdale's single off Toth's glove and scored on a force play. Drysdale eventually also scored on an infield out.

MOVE OUT FRONT
The triumph moved the Dodgers out front in the pennant scramble by .002 points over the Cubs, San Francisco and St. Louis, locked in a three-way tie for second place.

The Giants, who had held the top spot for exactly a month, were beaten by Houston 2-1 in 10 innings in Carl Warwick's run-scoring single. The Cards lost to the New York Mets 3-2 on Duke Snider's three-run ninth-inning homer.

In the only other NL game played, Milwaukee belted Pittsburgh 9-5 as Hank Aaron hit his 17th homer. Cincinnati and Philadelphia were rained out.

ORIOLES IDLE
Chicago's White Sox got strong pitching and a two-run homer from Juan Pizarro, whipped Kansas City 7-1 and moved to within one-half game of American League-leading Baltimore. The Orioles' game with Boston was rained out.

Detroit walloped New York Yankees 8-4. Minnesota whipped Los Angeles' Angels 4-1.

United Players Dominate Selects

The men who picked the city all-star soccer side which faces Wolveshampton Wanderers here June 17, picked mainly from Victoria United, with a dash of youth from the Victoria and District Football League.

Team was announced last night, and shows 11 members of United's team in the Pacific Coast Soccer League, plus three of the top players from the district league. They are Pat Mulcahy of Vic West, who will start at centre half, and Barry Cosier of Hennessey and Bill Abbot of George Hotel, who will see action on the forward line.

POSITIONS LATER

Manager Willie McMillan emphasized that while the defense is set, the front line for the moment consists merely of eight forwards, with positions to be decided later.

Barry Cosier will be in goal, with Dave Stothard and Len Anderson at fullback, and George Wright, Mulcahy and Ron Jenkin on the half line.

In addition to Abbot and Cosier, forwards selected are Henry Vanderhorst, George Paul, Bill Hamilton, Chumny

'Youngster' Stan Matthews Wants Three More Seasons

By PAUL WESTBROOK
LONDON (CP)—A couple of years ago Jackie Mudie, guest soccer player for Toronto City, wrote Stokely City Manager Tony Waddington about a young British lad in Canada who had promise.

Waddington acted on his star forward's advice and signed the "youngster" who, incidentally, was just approaching his 47th birthday.

That's how the old Victoria came home to the old Victoria

Road stadium where his twinkling feet started on the road to stardom 33 years ago.

"Of course, we were told we would have to shorten the pitch for him and bring in the touchlines," says Waddington. "But Stan said make it wider."

People were making cracks about Matthews' age as long as 10 years ago. When Stoke bought him back from Blackpool the jokers said it was like buying an old racing car with an illustrious past but no kick left.

Two Britons Reach Finals

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (CP-AP)—English Walker Cup player Michael Lunt and Scotsman John Blackwell advanced through the semi-finals Friday to give the British amateur golf championship an all-British final round.

They knocked off the last two surviving Americans Friday afternoon following the elimination in morning quarter-finals of two other U.S. players, including defending champion Richard Davies.

Lunt and Blackwell meet today in the 36-hole match-play final.

Their success ended a U.S. run of triumphs in Walker Cup years in Britain.

Ever since 1926—the year James Sweetser won—an American has taken the British amateur title in a Walker Cup year. The team match is played in Britain every four years and it was won this year again by the U.S.

Vancouver Golfer The One to Catch

Vancouver's Gayle Hitchens rules as favorite for the women's B.C. Close golf championship starting Monday at Royal Colwood, and when you consider her credentials, it's no wonder.

Last year Miss Hitchens won both this tournament and the B.C. junior, then went on to become Canadian women's open champ. She has shown no signs of slowing down this year, recently taking the Vancouver city championship.

Among the others in the 110 entrants who rate plenty of consideration are Kamloops junior Marilyn Palmer, a five handicapper; Vancouver stars Colleen Smith and Barbara Renwick, and the big three in local golf, Margaret Todd, Joan Lawson and Shirley Naysmith.

Mrs. Todd reached the final last year before bowing to Miss Hitchens.

B.C. junior tournament, run concurrently with the Close competition will be settled Monday in 18 holes of medal play, and juniors may use their scores to try and qualify for the Close event.

Match play for the 16 qualifiers in the Close event begins Tuesday, with the 36-hole final set Friday.

Pearson Condemns Judge For Anti-Nuclear Blast

OTTAWA (CP)—Part of an president of the Exchequer anti-nuclear speech made by Court of Canada, was termed Mr. Justice J. T. Thorson, "regrettable indeed" Friday by Prime Minister Pearson. Mr. Pearson, who questioned the "propriety" of Mr. Justice Thorson making such a speech "in view of the position he holds," said his statement that the U.S. had started the madness of the nuclear arms race did nothing but give aid and comfort to a potential enemy. Mr. Justice Thorson is president of the Canadian Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament.

Prime Minister Pearson, quoted from a Winnipeg newspaper's interview with former defence minister Harbison to support the Liberal government's contention that the former Conservative government committed Canada to acquiring nuclear warheads. He said the Winnipeg Free Press quoted Mr. Harbison as saying documents exist which set out the former government's obligations to acquire nuclear forces.

Speaker Alan Macnaughton ruled out of order a Progressive Conservative attempt to expunge a Commons vote of 140 to 64 on a New Democratic Party motion calling for production by the government of any documents showing a commitment by the former Conservative administration to accept nuclear arms.

The Commons debated but did not vote on a bill proposed by Reid Scott (NDP—Toronto Danforth) that would set a limit of 10 per cent on interest rates that can be charged by all lending institutions.

Trade Minister Sharp told the Commons the government is "doing everything possible" to maintain and increase Canadian sales of wheat to Communist China.

'Japan Wants Our Fish'

OTTAWA (CP)—The United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union said Friday that Japan's attitude to the North Pacific Fisheries Convention "proves we were absolutely correct in our warning the Japanese were out to seize all our fisheries resources."

The comment came on the heels of negotiations in Washington at which Japan told Canada and the U.S. she wants to scrap fish conservation and abatement measures.

These apply mostly to halibut and salmon under the 10-year North Pacific Fisheries Convention, which Japan seeks to replace.

The union statement said it had told Fisheries Minister H. J. Robichaud repeatedly of Japan's intention and "only a man who is deaf, dumb and blind could have failed to realize that this was no threat but a logical move on the part of the Japanese to take advantage of the weak-kneed, unprincipled approach displayed by the Canadian government and its fisheries department and the three-nation fishing treaty."

Aroma in Law Courts Mountain or Molehill?

A persistent smell in some offices of the Victoria Law Courts will be investigated by the public works department although there has been no official complaint, a department spokesman said Friday.

"We can't go around smelling for things. This sounds as if a molehill had been made out of a molehill," the spokesman said following reports several government employees had suffered headaches and irritations from oil fumes sucked in by the ventilation system at the Law Courts.

"We've got the situation under review," said Greater Victoria senior medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread. "I don't think it's too serious and it is not too difficult to rectify. No one has been taken to hospital yet."

Chief complaint apparently came from a physician who reported to Dr. Whitbread several of his patients had been adversely affected by the fumes.

"We look after the people in the Law Courts pretty well," the public works department spokesman added.

Arena, Rink

Convention Lure Hailed

Civic leaders Friday hailed the announcement that Memorial Arena and the Curling Rink will operate jointly to cater to large conventions.

Mayor R. B. Wilson said the move had great possibilities for an increase of convention business in the city, particularly in the off-season.

"Victoria has a great deal for convention delegates and their wives that other cities lack," the mayor said. "This is so to an even greater extent in winter when the rest of Canada is bleak and snowbound."

Ald. A. W. Toone said there will be no conflict with facilities for small conventions planned for the civic theatre on Centennial Square.

FORWARD STEP
Ald. Austin Curtis, chairman of council's arena commission, termed it a forward step.

"At one time the arena was regarded as being too far from the hotels for convention use," he added, "but this is no longer true because our hotel and motel accommodation is spreading out."

WITH EASE
Arena manager Jack Morgan said that between the two facilities "from the 900 to 1,500-and-up size" could be handled with ease.

This includes full dining facilities, main meeting hall, four large halls for up to 150 persons each, and up to 14 smaller areas for committees of about 35 to 40 members. The newly paved parking area between arena and curling rink can accommodate 300 cars.

SERVE CLUB

Mr. Morgan said that under the new working arrangement arena and curling rink management had submitted a joint bid for a 1964 service club convention that would bring between 1,200 and 1,500 people here.

The city's hotel and motel capacity has reached a point where conventions with 1,000 or more delegates are now feasible.

Chamber Debate Delayed

A meeting at which concrete proposals are to be presented for a Victoria convention centre has been postponed to June 24 from June 17.

Lou Worrell, assistant manager of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, reported last night the meeting of the convention centre committee of the Chamber's tourist industry group has been postponed because necessary information would not be available.

Norman Loomer, of the Dominion Hotel said Monday he will present a package proposal for a convention centre at the next meeting of the committee.

Talks Planned On Copter Site

Mayor R. B. Wilson said yesterday he will shortly re-open negotiations with a major oil company for access rights to a helicopter site on industrial reserve property in Victoria West.

A Colonist check with two employees on the main floor and two employees on the lower floor showed none suffered any ill effects.

"There have been more body's been complaining about headaches here than in the old court house," said deputy registrar of companies Maurice Jorre de St. Jorre. "Every-

City Won't Get 'Little Rembrandts'

Summer courses in painting and weaving for children will be given again this summer by the Greater Victoria Art Gallery but not "to make little Rembrandts out of them," curator Colin Graham said last night.

"The instruction is keyed to the world they live in. We let them explore related media such as print-making, paper mache and three-dimensional constructions," Mr. Graham said.

AGE LEVEL

"Our basic approach is to give the children opportunity for genuine creative experiences in terms of their age level. We don't want to inhibit them with ideas suitable only to adult painters."

"Of course, we would be happy if a genuine painter develops from these courses," he said.

Landscape painting for adults also will be offered.

Four six-week courses in painting for children will begin the first week in July—children four to six Tuesdays, six to nine Fridays, seven to 10 Wednesdays, and 11 to 14 Thursdays, always at 10 a.m. at the gallery.

Miss Florence Daniels will instruct the popular children's weaving classes—children seven to 10 Mondays and Thursdays, and 11 to 15 Tuesdays and Fridays, in the mornings.

FOR ADULTS

An intensive one-week course in landscape painting outdoors will be given for adults by well-known Vancouver Island painter and teacher Arnold Burrell during the third week in July.

Theatre School Set For Victoria by Fall

By JURGEN HESSE

If nothing goes wrong, Victoria will have its first fulltime professional theatre school for children and adults by this fall. Already Victoria amateur theatre fans, actors and supporters are talking about Peter Mannering's venture, the non-profit Victoria Theatre Studio.

Mr. Mannering doesn't waste much time. He left Winnipeg's Manitoba Theatre Centre as its director a week ago Friday and started the ball rolling in Victoria this week.

He has decided to settle in Victoria, returning to the city after 10 years when he was active in the Totem Theatre. ON SHOESTRING

Mr. Mannering will start his studio on a shoestring, keeping fees for school students—$30 a year—and adults as low as possible, at the same time hoping for a shot in the arm in form of a Canada Council or other grants.

In junior school classes, his studio will teach students creative dramatics, speech and improvisation from 5 to 7 p.m. High school students will be instructed in play reading, improvisation and speech, with preference on teaching theatre history.

SEEKS BUILDING

Adult classes and workshop would be held at night in the studio for which Mr. Mannering is still trying to locate a building.

Already enough adults have registered to fill an entire class, Mr. Mannering told the Colonist.

OPENS IN FALL

He hopes to open the studio by late September or early October, but first he will be busy at Barkerville's festival in July. After that, Victoria ranks top

Biggest Night of High School Lives

Valedictorian of class of almost 350 students at Victoria High School's annual ceremony, Gail Wall spent last few minutes making sure she knew her speech by heart. Gail, like valedictorians at Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Mount View High School ceremonies, memorized her speech. — (Ryan Bros.)

Speaking before 450 parents and friends at Mount View High School was Lynne Thompson, valedictorian of class of 150. She said: "These past few years have been the happiest of our lives and we leave Mount View with mixed feelings—regret for those friends we will not see again and anticipation for the new friends we will make." — (Ryan Bros.)

Audience of 500 rose to its feet at Esquimalt High School as graduating class of 160 students entered auditorium at beginning of annual ceremony, led by teacher W. J. Hooper. It was only graduating class in which all girls followed tradition by wearing white dresses with white gloves and red corsages. Vice-principal R. H. Temple was chairman in absence of principal Clive Kelly. — (Bud Kinman)

Parents Watch 'Wrecks'

Thousand Students at Recognition Ceremonies

Watched by more than 2,500 parents and friends, some 1,000 Greater Victoria students last night took part in recognition ceremonies at four high schools.

At least one of the 2,500 parents had divided loyalties. Clive Kelly, principal of Esquimalt High School, sat in the audience of 900 at Victoria High School to watch his son, Bruce, together with 336 classmates.

Back at Esquimalt High, vice-principal R. H. Hunter acted as chairman.

There was less conflict of interests at Mount View High School, where Greater Victoria school board chairman, Mrs. A. B. Thompson, was a speaker—her son, Douglas, was a member of the graduating class of 150.

This year, for the first time, the ceremonies were named recognition ceremonies because students still don't know the results of their examinations or whether they will graduate.

The new name was highlighted at Mount View before an audience of 450 when vice-principal W. R. Hunter told the students:

"When this was a graduation ceremony I could call you grads, but now it is a recognition ceremony . . . I can't call you wrecks."

At Oak Bay High School the large group of 250 graduating students forced a reversal of seating arrangements.

Mammoth Parade

Patricias Salute Victoria

By DON GAIN

First Battalion, PPCLI, saluted Victoria last night with a mounted march in full field dress, ending with a public inspection of weapons and vehicles at Beacon Hill Park.

The regiment leaves for summer quarters at Camp Wainwright, Alta., at 5 a.m. Tuesday, and will return to Work Point before going to Germany on a three-year posting in late October or early November.

HUNDREDS ON ROUTE

Hundreds of Victorians lined the route from Work Point and congregated at the park where Mayor R. B. Wilson took the drive-past salute on Dallas Road.

Commanding Officer Lt.-Col. G. G. Brown led the parade of 700 men as they drove by in three-quarter-ton troop carriers, jeeps, ambulances and echelon trucks—165 vehicles in all.

PUBLIC INSPECTION

After the parade, the vehicles formed up on the nearby sports field in Beacon Hill Park, and the public was invited to inspect 106 mm anti-tank rifles, heavy and medium machine guns, 81-mm and 4.2-inch mortars, along with other battlefield equipment.

Echelon vehicles, complete with cooks, drew up at one side of the field and served flapjacks to the youngsters in the crowd.

INTEREST GRATIFYING

"I was very gratified with the interest shown in the parade," Col. Brown said last night, "and I felt the battalion themselves enjoyed doing it."

"When I broke them off on the parade square at Work Point, I told them they had put on a first-class show and I was proud of the way they had prepared their weapons, vehicles and equipment and carried out the parade."

TRAVEL BY ROAD

Col. Brown said the battalion would move off Tuesday morning for Camp Wainwright, "very much as we were today."

"We will travel as a battalion, going by road all the way through to the camp. We will take the All-Canada route."

OFFICERS IN CHARGE

Leading their companies in yesterday's parade were the following officers commanding: Able Company, Major J. G. C. McKinlay; Bravo Company, Major M. C. Edwards; Charlie Company, Major G. C. Findlay; Delta Company, Capt. T. L. Clarke; Support Company, Major W. K. Stirling; "A" Echelon, Major Michael Levy.

Second-in-command was Major R. J. Kerfoot.

Capt. Douglas Bell acted as commentator.

Collision Hurts One Man

A man was in good condition at St. Joseph's Hospital last night following a two-car collision at Trans-Canada Highway and Tillicum.

Police said John Brennan, 519 Judah, was driving north on Tillicum and was struck broadside by a car driven east on the highway by William Eric Harrison, 1125 Caledonia. Brennan suffered head lacerations and was admitted at the hospital.

NOT INJURED

Harrison and the two passengers in his car were not injured.

Brennan's car was hit at the driver's door and came to rest between two poles just short of the E & N Railway tracks on the north side of the road.

The car had travelled the rest of the way across the road and jumped a shallow ditch before coming to a stop.

Gasoline May Go To 42.9

Gasoline prices have again risen one cent a gallon at most Victoria service stations, following the lead of Imperial Oil outlets. Regular gasoline now is 40.9 cents a gallon and premium 45.9.

At the same time Victoria's four independent stations—two Mohawk and two Pay-N-Save—raised their prices by one cent to 39.9 for regular.

FOR REGULAR

An ultimate gasoline price of 42.9 cents for regular was predicted last night by Earl Reynolds, Victoria zone president of the Automotive Retailers Association.

"If the oil companies go higher than 42.9 cents, we will go off commission again and they won't control the pumps any more," he said.

Before the gasoline price war started earlier this year, Victoria dealers made 8.6 cents on a gallon. Now dealers on commission make a guaranteed seven cents.

Troubled Mexican Ship Turns Up Off Victoria

The Mexican frigate California, reported missing after bad weather and mechanical trouble, turned up late Friday in Juan De Fuca Strait off Victoria, more than a day behind schedule.

She was due in Vancouver Thursday for a maritime festival.

SMALL BAY

A navy spokesman said the warship was forced to take shelter in a small bay on the U.S. coast two or three days ago, because of mechanical trouble and bad weather. No messages were received while she was on her way up the coast.

Many Victorians spotted the frigate as she came through the strait. One man mistook the Mexican flag for that of France.

"As soon as I saw her I knew it was a foreign warship," a B.C. Pilotage spokesman said.

ON HER WAY

"I sent the pilot boat out and notified the navy. The pilot went on board at 6:05 p.m. The frigate's now on her way to Vancouver."

Vancouver festival officials were scratching their heads when the frigate failed to arrive. Canadian and U.S. navies, Rescue Co-ordination Centre and harbor officials in Vancouver were unable to supply any information.

He Won't Crusade

There'll be no crusades against sex, liquor and gambling during his term of office, says newly-installed moderator of the Presbyterian Church of Canada, Dr. Harry Lennox, of Vancouver's Kerrisdale Presbyterian Church, in accepting the post at the 89th general assembly in Toronto's Knox Presbyterian Church. — (Fednews)

Dying John Criticized For Views on Reds

BONN (UPI)—While he lay dying, Pope John XXIII and his predecessor were the centre of controversy in Germany.

Pope John was under attack by members of his own church for his views on communism. Pope Pius XII was being bitterly criticized, and equally vigorously defended, for his failure to publicly protest the Nazi massacre of Jews during the Second World War.

LEADERS NERVOUS
Although Pope John was personally popular in West Germany, his attempts at accommodation in Eastern Europe made political leaders here nervous.

It was feared that in order to gain advantages for the Catholic Church in Poland, for instance, the Pope was ready to place the congregations in the former German territories of Silesia and Pomerania under Polish bishops.

Sainthood Sought For Pope

By LOUIS CASSELL
NEW YORK (UPI)—A campaign is already under way for the canonization of Pope John XXIII.

Canonization is the process by which the Roman Catholic Church officially proclaims a person to be a saint in Heaven.

It is preceded by a lengthy investigation which must establish, among other things, that at least four miracles have been worked by God in response to prayers which invoked the intercession of the person believed to be a saint.

Richard Cardinal Cushing, archbishop of Boston, has invited American Catholics to offer prayers in the name of John XXIII and to submit to Cushing "all information concerning favors granted through his (Pope John's) intercession" so that the canonization process may "begin immediately."

Pope John, who reigned from 1963 to 1963, is the only pope of modern times who has been proclaimed a saint.

Dame of Sark Rules A 'Little Paradise'

SARK, Channel Islands—Some 20 miles off the French coast, I've discovered "a woman's world," or rather, "a Dame's world" which is just short of paradise.

The Dame, 73-year-old Mrs. Sibyl Mary Hathaway, is the master—or "Seigneur"—of a three-and-a-half by two miles island in the English Channel.

Although owing allegiance to the British Crown, the Dame of Sark has theoretically remained the undisputed feudal "lord" of her 500 subjects. Her inherited rights, powers and privileges are nowadays harmless enough. Yet her likes and dislikes still are law and her aversion regarding modern technical innovations have made this island something quite out of the 1963 world.

I saw the Dame of Sark—she is a motherly as well as dignified looking lady—riding in her electric motorcar around her island. But her car is the only one on the island, since one of the feudal laws prohibits motor traffic except tractors. The Dame is also entitled to feudal dues, representing a tenth of all harvest and all male islanders owe her two days work a year to repair roads.

Mrs. Hathaway's "subjects" don't complain. As on the other Channel Islands, the residents pay no income tax, and have no military service. Tobacco and liquor, being tax-free, is cheaper than most places.

Being cut off, islands always hold a mystery and fascination. And this "Dame's world" turned out to be the ideal place to get, as they say, away from it all. Without planes (there is no airport), no cars and hardly a radio within ear-shot, the island seems still to slumber in the arms of the 19th century. The complete absence of what we today call civilization had an amazingly soothing effect on me.

Instead of taxis, a charming and motley collection of ancient horse carriages await visitors at Sark's small harbor. But in one day one can easily walk across the island seeing the sights as well as take out time for lunch in one of the five hotels.

One ideal aspect of Sark shows up in its prison. Crime, it seems, is practically non-existent here. The jail, about 20 feet long and 15 feet wide, has not even a keeper and the longest prison term is 48 hours. Since no records are kept, nobody could even tell me how many people have been locked up there in the past 100 years.

As the Dame herself says, Sark is not for those who need cinemas, fast cars and parties. It is for those who are looking for beauty in nature and for serenity in life.

The children, with their teacher, Mrs. V. Swanson, and weaving instructors, Mrs. E. F. Hagarty and Mrs. F. Levins, were greatly interested in the display and were able to use some of the looms themselves. Each child was presented with a lavender sachet before leaving.

Ann Marie Burnett Bride Of Mr. Dallas J. McClung

Metropolitan United Church was the scene of the recent marriage of Anne Marie Burnett, daughter of Lt.-Cmdr. and Mrs. E. Burnett, Blackwood Street, and Mr. Dallas Judge McClung, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. McClung of Vancouver. Dr. F. E. H. James officiated at the late afternoon ceremony. Mr. Stanley Martin, soloist, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because."

The bride chose a floor-length gown of white nylon sheer, overlaid with a front panel of embroidered lace. Diamonds and seed pearls accented the gown. The brilliant skirt fell in a sweep from a dainty bow at the waistline. Her crown of orange blossoms held a misty chapel-length veil, touched with lace appliques.

Lavender-toned gladioli centered with a white rose formed her crescent-shaped bouquet and her jewelry was cultured pearls and earrings, the gift of the groom.

Mrs. R. Rasmussen, matron of honor, and bridesmaids, Miss C. Campbell and Miss J. Hoffmann, were in full-skirted dresses of lavender lace and nylon. A taffeta bow accented the back waistline. They carried white carnations and wore headbands of the same flowers. Their pearl necklaces and earrings were the gift of the bride.

Mr. F. Rose was best man and Mr. R. McClung and Const. C. Burnett, RCMP, ushered guests.

The lavender color scheme was carried out at the reception held in the Flamingo Room, Crystal Gardens. The bride's table was centered with a three-tiered wedding cake flanked with silver candelabra, white tapers and stocks. Guests enjoyed dancing.

Leaving on an up-island honeymoon, the bride changed to a coral figured silk dress, beige coat and accessories.

On their return, Mr. and Mrs. McClung will make their home on Caledonia Avenue.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. C. Burnett, Mrs. J. Bate, Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. H. McClung, Mr. and Mrs. G. Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. R. McClung, Mr. and Mrs. T. Annals, Mr. and Mrs. R. Dagg, Mr. and Mrs. J. Micklesen, all of Vancouver.

Mrs. Sydney Norsworthy, 5280 Parker Avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Betty May Penningroth, to Mr. Robert Odell Ballinger, son of Mrs. Louise Ballinger of Burbank, Calif. The wedding took place recently in Chapel of the White Stars, Las Vegas, Nevada. Mr. and Mrs. Ballinger are now making their home in Burbank. The bride is a 1959 graduate of the Royal Jubilee Hospital School of Nursing.

Dear Ann Landers: Don't tell me to see a psychiatrist. My problem IS a psychiatrist.

I have been in analysis for almost seven months and have made good progress. I'm able to get out of bed in the morning and go to work, which is more than I could manage a year ago. But—I pay my doctor $25 for what is supposed to be a 45-minute session and he never gives me more than 35 minutes.

During those 35 minutes he accepts telephone calls (last week three) and he made one telephone call on his own. He frequently excuses himself to go to the washroom on my time. Last week he left and was gone for 12 minutes.

Yesterday while I was free-associating he ate an apple and read the newspaper. I don't think he heard a word I said. May I hear your opinion on this?—RIGHT OR WRONG?

Dear Right or Wrong: The next time you "free-associate," unload your feelings and let him have it with both barrels. And eat an apple while you're at it.

If the analyst feels you should see someone else he'll tell you. I am not suggesting a change of doctors, however, since you seem to be making progress and THIS is what really matters.

Dear Ann Landers: Counting my husband, I have five kids. Don has always helped at home cheerfully and willingly and I thought it was mighty nice of him until I learned what a big deal he was making of it at the office.

One of Don's colleagues informed me "for my own good" that he should not be doing my work because he is too important a man in the business. "He should be saving his energy for his career," she said. She also volunteered to give him the life he deserved if I should feel inclined to set him free.

Miss "Goodheart" was transferred out of town last year but they still keep in touch professionally.

This summer my husband gets an expense-paid trip to Europe. He has been promising for five years that if the company ever sent him abroad he would take me along. Well, you guessed it. Now we can't afford it—unless I decide to use the money we have saved for a bigger house.

"Miss Goodheart" will of course be in Europe at the convention—with bells on. I'm going to go and the decision is mine but we need a bigger house and it will be another year before he can afford it if I blow the money on the trip. What do you say?—GREEN EYES.

Dear Eyes: Start packing. You've lived in the house THIS long, so another year won't kill you.

And when you tell your husband your decision, leave "Miss Goodheart" out of it. No man has to go to Europe to see abroad.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is from a teen-ager who agrees with you nine times out of 10.

My question is this: Why is it that when you print something that supports parents they can't wait to shove it in our faces? More than once I've found your column pinned to my pillow, or lying on my dinner plate. Yet when you stick up for teen-agers my parents never say a word. Sometimes, in fact, they try to ditch the newspaper.

I say if you are going to be used as the authority then your advice should be accepted ALL the time, and not just when it suits our parents' purposes.

BATTILING BONNIE.

Dear Bonnie: No advice should be followed slavishly because circumstances alter cases. But a parent who is unwilling to give an inch, or admit that teens DO have a point, will lose out because he will be considered opinionated and unjust.

Mysterious Blights

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRIES

We are coming up now to just about the ideal time of the year for killing weeds in the lawn. Optimum conditions for a good kill are: settled weather, temperatures in the high 60's, not much wind, lots of moisture in the soil, and lush, succulent growth on the weeds.

Earlier in the year there is too much rain about, and the temperatures are seldom high enough for the weedkilling chemicals to work properly. After midsummer, the leaves of the weeds become tough and leathery and don't absorb the weedkiller as they should. It is important to remember that the only way you can get weedkiller to the roots is through the leaves, and the leaves should be big and lush and sappy, with their pores wide open to absorb the chemical.

A pneumatic sprayer is the most economical way of applying 2,4-D over a wide expanse of lawn. It is also the best way to lose friends and infuriate neighbors, as the fine mist and fumes from a sprayer will drift out of bounds even in a light wind, and will do a most efficient job of killing expensive plants and shrubs in the gardens downwind from you.

This is becoming a very common occurrence, and my mail is filled with reports of mysterious blights which have twisted and distorted the leaves of precious plants, shrubs and vines. In almost every case, the trouble can be traced to 2,4-D fumes drifting on from a carelessly handled weedkilling job somewhere in the neighborhood—with a favorable wind, it could be a block away.

Some plants are particularly susceptible to this kind of damage. Tomato and pepper plants, for instance, will curl and distort their leaves at the slightest whiff of 2,4-D fumes in the air, while Virginia creeper and grape vines are both highly vulnerable. I lost my favorite lilac bush in this way.

A coarse spray from a watering can is a lot safer than the fine mist from a sprayer, just spot-treating the weeds, but it isn't easy to decontaminate the can after the job is finished, and it is unsafe to use it for any other purpose until it has been scrubbed out thoroughly with a hot washing soda solution and rinsed several times.

This is more trouble than the job is worth, and it is better to substitute one of those inexpensive plastic nozzles that fit on the neck of a one-gallon vinegar jug. If you don't have a vinegar jug, your garden shop will sell you its modern equipment in bright yellow plastic. By reserving this equipment exclusively for weedkilling jobs, there is no need to decontaminate.

Another reasonably safe applicator is the Kilder Kane, a hollow plastic gadget rather like a walking stick which is filled with weedkiller solution and ground down on each individual weed in turn.

In spot-treating weeds in this way, one problem is to know which weeds were treated and which were not. One of the newer gadgets is an aerosol bomb that squirts a foamy lather of weedkiller on each weed. The foam persists for about twenty minutes, making it easy to see where applications were made. I don't know just how safe this one is, but I haven't had any reports of drift damage yet.

Probably the safest method of any is the combined weedkiller-fertilizer compound such as Green Cross Weed-N-Feed or Garden Grove Lawn Food With Weedkiller. These chemicals are granulated and stay put on your lawn without drifting into other people's gardens, and about the only danger here is inadvertently applying the weedkilling fertilizer to your flower or vegetable garden—the results would be disastrous!

Dandelions, daisies and plantains are usually knocked out in one treatment if you catch them when their leaves are young and sappy. Clover and chickweed are resistant to the ordinary 2,4-D compounds and need such preparations as Comptox or Kiler to eradicate them.

JOHN CROSBY Finds

Rome Biggest Small Town

ROME—This is a small town. Two million people live here, it's true, but that means only that it's a big small town, the biggest. Still, it has all the aspects that give a small town its special qualities.

Everyone, as they say, knows everyone. In a town of two million this can't be true, but then it isn't true in small towns, either. What is true is that there is only one big circle here instead of a lot of little ones as there are in New York and London and Paris.

In New York or London or Paris, it's quite possible for one man to belong to five or six circles, but the circles remain separate, spinning in their own orbits. Here there's one big circle that spills out from the cafes on the Via Veneto to the villas on the Appia Antica and the beaches at Fregene. Everyone knows pretty well who's got who by the hair and who's yelling ooh.

Another thing—as in all small towns the world over—there isn't much to do. There's no theatre to speak of, the opera is lousy, the movies—well, every small town's got movies.

There are only three night clubs: the Cabala, which may be the most beautiful night club in the world, the Eighty-Four and Capriccio's, which are much too noisy.

Here again there's a great resemblance to small town juke joints where the same crowd gathers night after night, telling variants of the same joke and dancing to the same old records. I don't mean it's dull. It's very warm and agreeable, but nevertheless very small town.

In the small town they used to gather at the railway station and watch the trains come in. Here they gather at the Via Veneto cafes—for the same purpose—to cast an appraising look over the new arrivals. To chew a bit with the old residents.

The fewness of things to do, places to go, the ease with which one slips into the stream and drifts along with it, given Rome its special flavor and is both a blessing and a curse.

Indolence is a way of life here and the very ease of it gets on American nerves after a while.

The other night I was having dinner with an American girl in a lovely piazza that is a miraculous harmony of geometry. The fountain splashed. The air was balmy. The moon lit the scene like candlelight. In fact, the whole bit was just plain heaven, and in spite of it, or rather, I suspect, because of it, the girl, who has been living here a year, burst out: "I've just got to go home. I can't stand any more of these crumbling buildings and those damned fountains making that splashing racket." (Reminds me of the guy with a hang-over snarling at his cat: "Why'n't you stop stamping your feet!")

Ask an American who's been here awhile how he likes it, and you are likely to get what I call the Rome pause. "Well . . ." he says and hesitates, not knowing quite how to continue. It's a complaining type "well" and what he's complaining about is the absence of things to complain about.

Is Bette Set For Rome Fireworks?

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Bette Davis will be working for Joe Levine when she goes to Rome this summer for The Empty Canvas with Horne Buchholz and Catherine Fierke. Cathy's uncle is Paul-Henri Spaak, Belgian minister of foreign affairs. And didn't Tony Perkins date her in Paris? Damned! directs. And there could be some temperamental fireworks with his leading lady. Or is that all in the past?

George Maharis considers himself a free agent, although his Route 66 producer is contesting this. George, who seems to have completely recovered from the hepatitis that took him from the series, has been rehearsing quite strenuously for a night club act. He will air his pipes, June 16, on the Ed Sullivan show.

I was wrong in assuming that Alan Ladd would repeat his Nevada Smith role after The Carpetbaggers. The Nevada picture requires a young man in the title role. And it will be a different kind of film altogether, I am told by the ubiquitous Joe Levine. These two pictures are part of his current nife productions. There isn't a major studio as busy as independent Joe.

Pretty Annette Funicello says she prefers horses to horses. Having completed The Beach Party with Bob Cummings and Frankie Avalon, Annette took off to New York to root for her two nags at Roosevelt raceway.

June Haver's play Marathon, starring Julie Harris as the 15-year-old June, will be shown in a New York ballroom. This has been June's long-time dream for her play. Julie Harris is practically living with June to get all the facts and mannerisms.

Of all things, Anita Ekberg is an anthropologist in Bob Hope's Call Me Bwana. I can just hear all the innuendoes and double-entendres.

Lauren Bacall's constant visits to Jason Robards Junior on the set of Act One, should stop the rumors. And Jason returned the attention when Bette—Humphrey Bogart always called her by her real name and so does Robards—recently color-taped a TV show. Jason likes a drink, as did Bogey, and Bacall has been able to cope with both.

According to Stanislavsky, an actor must suffer. And that is what Laurence Harvey is doing in Of Human Bondage. All day long his leg is in a brace to simulate a club foot, and sometimes he wonders if he still has it. Larry will appear on the stage in London this summer, then go to Broadway in the fall for The Time of the Barracuda. That sounds painful, too.

Miller, Coffee Shops

Japan Revolutionaries Are Taking a Beating

TOKYO (AP)—Surrounded by collegiate laughter and gentle music from old Glen Miller records, the grim young man sat tensely in the cozy off-campus coffee shop. Clenching his fists angrily, he declared:

"American and Japanese workers are asleep. We need immediate action against the U.S. imperialists."

Hiroshi Kuwahara, 21, is international secretary of the once-powerful Zengakuren leftist student federation. In June, 1960, he and his comrades were important figures as they sent thousands of screaming youths swarming through the streets in massive demonstrations against the U.S.-Japan security treaty.

Today, these professional young leftists seem strangely out of step with Japan's increasingly carefree youth. Their ideology of riot and revolt is taking a licking from Glen Miller and the coffee shops.

Many of the Zengakuren faithful have "passed over" to comfortable jobs in Japan's largest industries and, now that they have vested interests in capitalism, nervously avoid even talking about their days as budding revolutionaries.

The Zengakuren's prestige is at an all-time low following revelations that "capitalist money" has found its way into the headquarters coffers.

RALPH PASHLEY
... ruled innocent

Name-Dropping No Use Ex-Commentator Told

A former city radio and television commentator who asked to speak to police leaders was ruled innocent Friday of a charge of exceeding 30 miles an hour after being told by Magistrate William Ostler that name-dropping was of no assistance.

Ralph Pashley, 3946 Cedar Hill Cross Road, appeared in city magistrate's court after entering a plea of not guilty at a previous court sitting.

TOLD SPEEDING

City police Const. Russell Redman testified he had followed the accused along Government Street to pace him. When Pashley was pulled over, he asked the constable what he was to be charged with and was told speeding.

Pashley, according to testimony, then got out of his car, walked to the rear and asked to use the police radio.

'CANT DO THIS'

He said he wanted to call "John Blackstock, Mercer (Deputy Chief Harry Mercer). He said, 'I know them all. You can't do this to me,' Const. Redman testified.

Pashley said he saw the police car when it passed him at Johnson and Government and noted his car was below the speed limit.

ARITHMETIC

He said the constable pulled him over at Shawinigan Lumber and said he had to travel at speeds up to 50 to catch the accused. Pashley contended this was a matter of elementary arithmetic.

"The constable asked me if I had been drinking, then I became angry and demanded to be taken to the police station to be given a test to show I had not been drinking."

Magistrate Ostler said there was a difference of opinion on how far the constable followed

ROVER

"To buy a better-built, more comfortable medium-sized car than the Rover 3-Litre, you will have to go a long way over its price—I mean, by thousands of dollars, not hundreds."

—Ken Parry

There's nothing the Rover is still a craftsman's car—engineers don't just spot-check, they're individually bench-tested a body gets 9 coats of paint, hand-rubbed at 5 stages. Every car is road-tested twice—each time by a different engineer at material standards are so high, steel and alloys must be specially made to Rover specifications. Upholstery is prime leather, dashboard and window surrounds are African walnut. Body is welded, reinforced steel, thoroughly soundproofed, sealed against dust and draft. Rover's have 2 fuel pumps (not 1), 7 main bearings, and a Cold Start lever that will start the car instantly, even in sub-zero weather.

LIFE of the PARTY!

CHARLIE ALWAYS REMEMBERS

Depend on Charlie never to forget, even when his firm suddenly makes him fly up to Prince George on the very weekend we're celebrating a birthday. And sure enough, it was the long distance call he made that eventually got the party mood going.

Charlie is always the life and soul of a party—and how he hates to miss one! As long as he can reach a telephone, bless him, he very rarely does.

After 6 p.m. each evening (and all day Sunday) long distance rates drop by about one quarter. Vancouver to Kamloops, for example, can cost as little as $1.05.

Why don't YOU phone somebody near or dear tonight, when long distance rates are lower?

Winning Contract

By HOWARD SCHENKEN and RICHARD L. FREY

A bridge expert so rarely fails to "guess" which opponent holds the crucial missing card that he will often leave both opponents wondering which of them neglected to check his cards. But a good player doesn't need to peek. There are nearly always clues suggesting that one defender is more likely than the other to hold the vital card. South's correct judgment of the situation in today's deal led to an unusual play.

South has three possible responses to one club: two no trump, one heart and one diamond. Two no trump would express the strength and distribution of South's hand, but might cause a good major-suit fit to be missed. There is no rush to bid no trump, so a suit response at a low level is slightly better.

When West leads the spade five, South realizes that he was in danger of losing four spade tricks and the club ace. If he could avoid this, he would be certain to make his contract.

As the cards lie, the contract would have failed if South captured the spade jack at the first trick. East gets on lead with the club ace and leads a spade to give West four tricks. But declarer did some hard thinking before automatically grabbing the first trick and hoping that the club ace would be with West. His thoughts ran like this: If West has only four spades, I need only one stopper. If he has five, I'm a sucker if I play for him to also hold the club ace because he neither opened the bidding nor overcalled. So if he has five spades, East probably has the club ace.

As a result of this "ifing," declarer ducked the first spade. On the next trick, his queen forced the ace. He won the third spade, knuckled out the club ace, and wrapped up four tricks.

'Partying' Soldier Gets Fine

A man who was warned he must be a good citizen as well as a good soldier was fined $250 on a charge of indecent assault and put on a $500 bond to keep the peace and be of good behavior, in city magistrate's court yesterday.

Thomas Galbraith, 19, of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, was charged in connection with an incident on Queens Road during a drinking party when he allegedly entered the wrong house.

GRAVE OFFENCE

"You have heard counsel for both say this is a grave offence," said Magistrate William Outler. "In addition to being a soldier, you are also a citizen. The minute you leave the post you cannot abandon all proper behavior."

The magistrate said Galbraith was trying to be a man when he was still a boy. "The trouble, as you put it yourself, is that you are too big for your britches."

THANK VICTIM

He said Galbraith should be thankful for the way his victim handled the situation. "If she had not behaved the way she did, you might have been in much more serious trouble."

Magistrate Outler agreed with defence counsel David Hummel that the army held the best hope for Galbraith. "You are a good soldier, but you must learn to behave in the citizen role as well as when you are a soldier," he said.

Crown prosecutor T. P. O'Grady offered no objection to defence counsel's suggestion that the accused be fined and remain in the army.

Harold Edward Reeves, no fixed address, was sentenced to two years less a day on two charges of breaking and entering and two charges of forgery in Colwood magistrate's court.

The charges rose out of break-ins at Colwood Pharmacy and Belmont Drugs, Dec. 31, 1962.

Richard L. Watt, 600 Grenville Road, was fined $25 for being a minor in possession of liquor.

Navy's Choices

Appointed director of naval organization and management at naval headquarters in Ottawa, is former Victorian Capt. Arthur McPhee, left. Capt. McPhee has been commander, first Canadian escort squadron, since July, 1961, and will be succeeded by Capt. John Dawson, Westmount, Que., right, one-time former commander of HMCS Skeena.

Official Probing 'All White' Cafe

The B.C. labor department is investigating the case of a Victoria restaurant which recently advertised "all white help."

Deputy labor minister William Sands last night said one of the department's industrial relations officers is investigating a recent advertising leaflet in which the Astoria Restaurant, 744 Yates, advertised "all white help."

Victoria Labor Council has protested the advertisement as a violation of B.C.'s Fair Employment Practices Act.

Three Die in B.C.

Blast of Air Fells Plane

PRINCETON (CP) — Three men died Friday when their light plane, apparently thrown out of control by hot air from a paving plant, crashed near the Hope-Princeton highway.

Police said they believe a strong updraft of air from containers of boiling tar caused the aircraft to plunge into the Similkameen range 400 yards from the plant.

Earl Malley, the pilot, Bob Ford and Jack Wylie, all of the Vancouver area, were killed instantly.

The accident occurred in heavy fog and witnesses said the pilot appeared to be banking to avoid a low hill when he passed over the Western Paving Company.

FOUR SEATER

They were returning to Vancouver in the four-seater, Mark 21 Mooney aircraft from Trail, in the Kootenays.

The little plane slammed into the ground near Allison Pass Summit, just west of here and about 115 miles east of Vancouver. The crash scene was 100 yards from the highway.

HEAVY DRIZZLE

Ron Jones, a tractor operator for the B.C. highways department, said visibility was poor when the crash came at 9:25 a.m. F.D.T. "There was fog around the treecops and a heavy drizzle. The pilot probably didn't see the trees until it was too late."

Jones and two other men saw the plane bank to make a turn then disappear behind the trees. The sound of the crash followed.

MINE MACHINERY

Malley, 48, was western representative for the Presto-Tile Electrical Company. Ford, also 48, was a Second World War RCAF veteran. He was district manager of the Jeffrey Manufacturing Company of Burnaby, manufacturers of mining machinery. Wylie ran a sewing machine business.

The Birds And The Birds

VANCOUVER (CP)—The National Research Council, which experiments with anything, hopes birds can take care of the birds at Vancouver International Airport.

The council said Friday it plans to use specially-trained falcons to clear airport runways clear of ducks, pheasants and seagulls.

Falcons have been used for centuries for hunting game.

Sacred Rebel Fears:

Quebec May Quit

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Guy Marcoux, Independent Social Credit member of Parliament for Quebec-Montmorency, said Friday Quebec may withdraw from Confederation within five years.

"The separatist movement might have separation within five years if nothing happens to prove that separatism might be a tragedy and a nonsense," he said.

Because French-Canadians "seem to have been treated like second-class citizens," the average French-speaking person in Quebec has "a separatist feeling," Dr. Marcoux said, however, this could be eliminated by a rational explanation of "separatism." Only harm could come to Quebec and Canada if they split, he told a press conference.

Dr. Marcoux, who resigned from the Social Credit party, said many Social Credit candidates purposely misled voters during the last two federal elections.

Dr. Marcoux said he would like to see a referendum on the issue of Quebec's future. "What will the public reaction be when they absorb the knowledge that medical fees will increase six per cent?" Mr. Martin, whose stand on government medicare is that B.C. will participate in any federal plan, supported a recent decision by Medical Services Inc. to broaden the scope of its doctor-sponsored health plan.

"But when they raise fees, possibly out of reach, then the demand for government-sponsored medical schemes is going to increase."

He said Deputy Social Credit Leader Real Caouette and "some other high brass in Quebec" had been guilty of unfair political practices including exploiting voters' desires for material possessions. The press conference was organized by the Press Institute of Canada and Dr. Marcoux was questioned by 20 newspaper men from across Canada.

Refugee Helpers Spurn B.C. So B.C. Helps No Refugees

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

The undernourished people of the world will eat B.C. food or stay hungry so far as the Premier's Committee for World Relief is concerned.

Health Minister Martin, the committee's reluctant chairman, said Friday it isn't going to spend its $20,000 provincial grant feeding hungry people with food produced anywhere else. He said relief organizations refuse to buy in B.C. as a condition of receiving the committee's money.

Couldn't the committee buy B.C. products and send them to a relief organization for distribution?

"And then not get it to the people who need it," was the minister's reply. "You'd lose control."

How about the United Nations? "They'd distribute it where they like and buy it where they like."

Douglas Hails Liberals

VANCOUVER (CP)—T. C. Douglas said Friday the new Liberal government deserves credit for handling the business of Parliament effectively.

The New Democratic Party leader told a press conference the Liberals have shown themselves to be "a competent administration."

"Their conduct of House business has shown they know how to run a government," he said. "But the question remains, will it be competence without compassion?"

He said the real test will come when Finance Minister Gordon presents his budget next week. "Until then we won't know what their major decisions have been."

To House

Job Plan Given By Grits

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal government unveiled its blueprint Friday for a high-level Economic Council of Canada to map out a planned route to economic growth and the highest possible level of employment.

The Commons authorized the government to present legislation to establish the council, then gave first reading to the formal bill spelling out what the council will do, how it will function and what its powers and membership will be.

THREE FULL-TIME

The government proposes to wipe out the National Productivity Council and create a brain trust of three full-time officers plus 25 other members on a part-time basis.

The National Productivity Council, consisting of 25 part-time members, was set up by the former Conservative government in 1961. It was to study methods of raising efficiency and production levels in industry.

The new council's job will be to plan the future in terms of economic growth, fullest possible employment and rising living standards.

"Planning, as we mean it," said Prime Minister Pearson.

Seaborne Force

Pearson Says No To NATO

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Friday turned down Canadian participation in the proposed NATO seaborne strategic nuclear force.

He did so the day after Livingston Merchant, U.S. special envoy, had come here for talks with Mr. Pearson and other government members on possible creation of a force of 25 surface ships armed with a total of 300 nuclear Polaris long-range missiles.

NEW COMMITTEE

Mr. Pearson said in the Commons in concluding a debate which resulted in unanimous approval of establishment of a Commons defence committee:

"I do not think it will be likely that we would wish to add to our existing responsibilities and commitments by participating in this kind of multi-lateral nuclear force."

"But this is a matter which will be given the consideration it deserves," he added.

FLAYS DIFENBAKER

Mr. Pearson spent more than an hour flaying Opposition Leader Diefenbaker for denying that the previous Conservative government had committed Canada to a nuclear policy. He applied such terms as "deceitful nonsense," "an affront to anyone's intelligence" and "childish" to the former prime minister's arguments.

HAS REVENGE

Mr. Pearson, with the loud support of his followers, had his revenge on Mr. Diefenbaker for the Jan. 20, 1958, Commons debate in which the then prime minister picked Mr. Pearson apart for proposing that the government resign and the Liberals resume office without an election.

BILLION SPENT

There could be "nothing more stupid" now than to refuse the nuclear ammunition for the nuclear carriers on which the Conservatives had spent $1,000,000,000 of the taxpayers' money.

In the "next few months" the government would re-examine the nuclear bombing role of the RCAF air division in Europe.

NDP QUERY

Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre): "Does the present government still feel that the decision of the previous government to acquire nuclear weapons was a mistake?"

Mr. Pearson: "Yes, at the time it was made it was a mistake. There was a better role for Canada to perform at that time and there may be a better role for Canada to perform in the future."

Japanese Omit Key Idea

WASHINGTON (CP)—Japan Friday submitted to Canada and the United States the draft of a proposed new treaty to replace the current 10-year conservation convention protecting halibut and salmon in the North Pacific Ocean.

A statement issued by the conferees said the Japanese draft omits the principle of abstention which Canada and the U.S. claim is vital and which the Japanese claim as "irrational" in its present form.

COULD WRECK

The three countries now are negotiating behind closed doors to prevent the current fisheries convention from collapsing, a development the Canadians claim could wreck the Canadian salmon industry.

The delegates said the Japanese made a new statement enlarging on previous contentions that the present treaty should be scrapped and a new conservation policy developed on "a scientific basis."

North Pole Sees First

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—Two Americans have become the first aviators to land single-engine airplanes at the North Pole, the University of Alaska said Friday.

The pilots were Bob Fisher, chief pilot for the Arctic research laboratory, and Cliff Alder, another laboratory pilot. The laboratory is operated by the university for the office of naval research.

Max Brewer, director of the Lab, said the May 21 landings were made to prove that light aircraft are useful in Arctic exploration because of their ability to land on the ice and wait for better weather.

Knighthood for a Dancer High Honor for a Boxer

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth Friday bestowed the female equivalent of knighthood on prima ballerina Alicia Markova and diplomat Barbara Seft, who had both been appointed after being appointed Britain's first woman ambassador.

Both women became dame commanders of the Order of the British Empire in the traditional list of honors issued to celebrate the Queen's official birthday.

There were 132 women on the list of 680 honors—a list that included people prominent in the arts, politics, scholarship, science, sport and industry.

Also named a dame commander of OBE was Jean Conan Doyle, an air commander and director of the British Women's Air Force and daughter of novelist Arthur Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes.

DICK TIGER, MBE
... on Queen's list

Among those given knighthoods was historian D. W. Brogan, Britain's best-known authority on American constitutional and political affairs and a frequent visitor to the United States.

World middleweight boxing champion Dick Tiger of Nigeria, 33, who defends his title July 13 in Nigeria against ex-champion Gene Fullmer of West Jordan, Utah, was made a member of the Order of the British Empire for his "services to boxing."

William Traverser Aitken, 58, a Toronto-born member of the British Parliament since 1950, was made a knight commander of the Order of the British Empire for political and public services.

Sir Patrick Dean, permanent British representative at the United Nations, was made a knight grand cross of the Order of St. Michael and St. George.

Tories Too Powerful?

Ominous Odors Linger in Profumo Scandal

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press

Former war minister John Profumo, much to his personal regret, is treating Britons to the richest dish of scandal in years.

See also Page 5. When the last savory tidbit of sex and high-level deceit has been warmed over for the last time by a gleeful popular press, certain ominous odors will still linger in the air.

The most important question is the effect Profumo's affair

with 21-year-old model Christine Keeler will have on the government and its calculations concerning the next election.

Prime Minister Macmillan, currently golfing in Scotland, is reported to be taking the matter calmly despite signs that the opposition intends to pin much of the blame on him. Labor Leader Harold Wilson has indicated his party will skirt the personal issues and concentrate on security.

Little good is being said about Profumo himself. While other cabinet ministers of this century have been involved in public scandals, he is the first to be caught up in something so blatantly sordid and casual.

On top of this, there is a feeling that he behaved extremely badly by trying to cover his tracks, lying to Parliament and generally "not being a man about the business."

It is hard to estimate what the public reaction will be when the dust settles. On the one hand there is the sardonic comment heard in bars that, unlike other recent government scandals which have involved horseflesh, "at least this time it's a girl."

Other observers think Profumo's indiscretions have added weight to the criticism that the government has grown lax during its long term in power; that ministers are beginning to feel no one can touch them. The Conservatives are already under fire for turning Britain into what some Labor members say is a nation of home-loving materialists. Profumo has shown that the "never had it so good" way of life can be rotten at the top, too.

Whether Macmillan is planning a fall or spring election, a careful reconsideration of policy is vital.

'Bad Eggs' Halt Dances

NANAIMO — Branch 10 of the Royal Canadian Legion has decided stopping Friday night Legion-sponsored dances here.

"The Legion did not stop the dances," said President Colin Murcheson. "It suspended them until we could eliminate the small number of bad eggs among the group."

Mr. Murcheson said the executive of the Canadian Legion Youth Organization took the matter into its own hands and declared the dances off.

DANCES SUSPENDED
The dances at the Legion Hall were suspended last month following a reported drinking incident at one of the dances. Since then members of the CLYO have stated they would form a new group and conduct their own dances.

NANAIMO — The Junior Olympic training plan races will be held at Caledonia Park today and the zone meet in the same location June 15.

CHEMAINUS — Four Crofton juveniles were put on one-year probation following a break-in spree in the Crofton area last April. They previously admitted to breaking and entering and theft.

NANAIMO — The new president of the Nanaimo Spades Club is Diane McKay. Retiring president Leslie LaFortune was presented with a pin representing 600 points earned in Spade work at the annual banquet Thursday night. The Spades club is sponsored by the Nanaimo Noon Kiwanis Club.

Around the Island

Mr. Murcheson Thursday night admitted the Legion was partly to blame for the situation because of lack of supervision.

"There has been bad publicity on both sides. We should meet the kids, reorganize and continue the dances," he said.

NO MEETINGS

No further meetings of the branch will be held until September but a meeting will probably be arranged between Legion and CLYO members in the meantime.

CLYO president Gloria Storchuk reported those responsible for the incident which brought about the suspension have been "banished" from the group.

MAPLE BAY

— Resident here for the past eight years, Lemon Achson Farrell died at the King's Daughters' Hospital at Duncan June 5, following a lengthy illness. Born at Blackrock, Ireland, in 1886, he came to Winnipeg 55 years ago and moved to North Vancouver 12 years later where he practiced as an accountant until retirement in the Cowichan Valley. Private services were held at Royal Oak Crematorium.

NANAIMO — About 150 pounds of lead and 75 feet of purse line were stolen from a fishing boat here, RCMP reported Friday.

NORTH COWICHAN

— Permit values during May this year decreased by approximately $40,000 compared with building permits issued during the same period in 1962, according to the monthly statement issued by the municipal office. Five-month total this year is $1,232,458, and in 1962 it was $1,340,758. Building permits during May, 1963, amounted to $28,050. In May, 1962, the total was $68,190.

LAKE COWICHAN — Seven juveniles, two from Duncan and five from Lake Cowichan, appeared before Magistrate Colin Anderson here on charges of breaking, entering with intent, wilful damage and possession of stolen goods.

Six were placed on probation periods from one year to 18 months, were ordered to make restitution of $180 and are prohibited from leaving the area unless permitted by the probation officer. On some of them a 10 p.m. curfew was imposed.

The seventh juvenile was raised into adult court and remanded until June 14 for sentence. All were involved in a summer home rampage last April.

CHEMAINUS — Frans Vandenberg, 27, Chemainus, appeared before Magistrate R. H. Purdy here, pleaded guilty to two charges under the unemployment insurance act and was fined $35.

The accused had made a declaration to the effect he had not had any earnings during the period Jan. 6 to 19, 1963, and Feb. 3 to 16, 1963, whereas he earned $87.46 and $110.72, respectively, during this period.

He received $132 in unemployment insurance benefits.

CHEMAINUS

— The Blood Donor's Clinic held here last week was attended by 160 people, with 136 giving blood. This did not meet the 200 pint quota called for, but convenor Mrs. Donald Cook said the W.A. to the hospital was pleased with the attendance, and in particular with the many students from the high school, who were first-time givers.

Both Chemainus and Crofton women assisted the nursing staff.

Hold Auction Today

PARKSVILLE — A wide variety of items will go under the auctioneer's hammer at the big community auction being staged by Parksville Klansmen Club at the Community Hall today at 1 p.m.

The auction will be preceded by a rummage sale at 10 a.m. and proceeds from both events will go toward Klansmen charities.

Cleanup of Beach Slated on June 15

PARKSVILLE — June 15 has been set as the date for a beach cleanup, mainly to remove oyster shells which are hazardous for bathers, by Parksville Village commission.

The assistance of Scouts, Cubs, Brownies, Little League ball players and others will be requested for the day.

Commissioner Norman Trim is in charge of the project which will start at 10 a.m. and continue until dusk.

Also approved at the regular meeting was a dust-control program which allows for the spending of up to $1,200 for oiling dirt roads and streets in the village.

A motion was passed to establish additional hours for dumping garbage at the municipal garbage dump. In addition to the present hours of 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesdays and Sundays, the grounds will be open from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

Little Orphan Naja Finds Home in Zoo

DUNCAN — A few days ago, the forest area of Shuswap Lake. A logger found the small Naja found a home other fawns fawn, turned it over to conservation officer W. R. Forth who gave it to the zoo.

Duncan zoo. Naja quickly became used to her foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Oyen, her little friend, the crew, Danny, and a number of kittens.

The beginning of Naja's life story is sad. Her mother was killed by a logging truck in little friends, follows Jim Oyen around, drinks milk like any other baby, and on chilly nights is allowed to sleep in the large trailer of her foster parents.

Mrs. Oyen said the little fawn probably soon will have another companion as another one had been picked up in the Mesachie Lake area.

Last-minute priming is essential part of any recognition ceremony and Oak Bay High School last night was no exception. Judi Maggs, right, helped adjust Mary White's corsage in final minutes before 250 students paraded into crowded auditorium before 700 parents and friends. — (Ryan Bros.)

City Won't Get 'Little Rembrandts'

Summer courses in painting and weaving for children will be given again this summer by the Greater Victoria Art Gallery but not "to make little Rembrandts out of them," curator Colin Graham said last night.

"The instruction is keyed to the world they live in. We let them explore related media such as print-making, paper mache and three-dimensional constructions," Mr. Graham said.

AGE LEVEL

"Our basic approach is to give the children opportunity for genuine creative experiences in terms of their age level. We don't want to inhibit them with ideas suitable only to adult painters."

"Of course, we would be happy if a genuine painter develops from these courses," he said.

Landscape painting for adults also will be offered. Four six-week courses in painting for children will begin the first week in July—children four to six Tuesdays, six to nine Fridays, seven to 10 Wednesdays, and 11 to 14 Thursdays, always at 10 a.m. at the gallery.

Miss Florence Daniels will instruct the popular children's weaving classes—children seven to 10 Mondays and Thursdays, and 11 to 15 Tuesdays and Fridays, in the mornings.

FOR ADULTS

An intensive one-week course in landscape painting out-of-doors will be given for adults by well-known Vancouver Island painter and teacher Arnold Burrell during the third week in July.

Biggest Night of High School Lives

Valedictorian of class of almost 350 students at Victoria High School's annual ceremony, Gail Wall spent last few minutes making sure she knew her speech by heart. Gail, like valedictorians at Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Mount View High School ceremonies, memorized her speech. — (Ryan Bros.)

Spending before 450 parents and friends at Mount View High School was Lynne Thompson, valedictorian of class of 150. She said: "These past few years have been the happiest of our lives and we leave Mount View with mixed feelings—regret for those friends we will not see again and anticipation for the new friends we will make." — (Ryan Bros.)

Audience of 500 rose to its feet at Esquimalt High School as graduating class of 160 students entered auditorium at beginning of annual ceremony, led by teacher W. J. Hooper. It was only graduating class in which all girls followed tradition by wearing white dresses with white gloves and red corsages. Vice-principal R. H. Temple was chairman in absence of principal Clive Kelly. — (Bud Kinsman)

Island In Brief

Excavators Find Skeleton

PARKSVILLE—A partial human skeleton has been discovered by Farmer Construction crew members while excavating for the sewer line in Parksville Community Park.

The bones appeared to be quite old and might prove to be of historical interest. They will probably be sent to the RCMP headquarters in Regina to determine their age. The skeleton was found about two feet underground in pure sand.

CHEMUNUS—Elizabeth Joan Calder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Calder, Chemunus Highway, and a student at Chemunus High School, has been awarded a $250 general program MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. scholarship.

The award is among 16 university entrance and general program scholarships made annually in areas where MacMillan operates. Miss Calder, art editor of the school annual, will continue studies in the commercial field in a Vancouver school.

KYUQUOT—A petition is being circulated among local residents and visiting fishermen protesting a proposed base license to B.C. Airlines which will prevent other companies operating charter flights in this area. Many people feel B.C. Airlines is giving reasonable service but freedom of choice on charter services should be allowed to the public.

Although the application for this protected service was approved by the Air Transport Board it has not yet been instituted, and charter companies can still operate in this area.

COURTENAY—More than $2,300 was collected by Kiwanians and their friends in a two-hour blitz Thursday evening and more is still to come, club officials say. It is hoped to reach the target of $4,000 when final returns are in.

The club is seeking $4,000 to start a $40,000 extension to their Kiwanis Village which will add another six single units.

KYUQUOT—A. M. Groat, the new fisheries officer here, has won approval by his strong action to protect a salmon stream.

While on patrol in Cachalot Inlet 10 miles from here he found employees of Ward Logging Co. of Zebellon using the Narrows River as a "cut road" for bringing out their logs. He stopped the operations, and charges are being brought for destruction of salmon eggs and fry, and knowingly putting logging slash into a river.

NANAIMO—Two emergencies within an hour were handled by the Nanaimo Harbor Commission patrol boat this week.

A Japanese sailor from the freighter Hokyo Maru was rushed from the ship to the dock by the patrol. The crew member was suffering from acute appendicitis and was taken to hospital by ambulance.

Minutes after handling this call the patrol boat had to answer to another distress call. This time the boat brought back William Cox, who had nearly severed his hand with an axe, and sent him to hospital.

Cowichan

Vocational Classes Expected

DUNCAN—The Cowichan school district may be able to start a general vocational course in three years, schools superintendent Arthur Jones has told the school board.

He said a recent discussion with provincial officials disclosed the basic requirement for such an establishment is a minimum of 1,000 pupils and the district now has 650 students in Grades 9 to 12. The higher figure might be reached in three years.

Chances are Salt Spring Island, Lake Cowichan and Ladysmith school districts will join any Cowichan district effort, he said.

The deputy superintendent of motor vehicles wrote to the board about a recent newspaper report under the headline: All employees must be fit.

He wrote: "We were very surprised to receive a newspaper clipping in which one of the members of your school board is quoted as saying school bus drivers are not required to have Class A chauffeur licenses and are therefore not subject under the Motor Vehicle Act to the more stringent rules. Obviously the person who made the statement was not informed of the facts. Any driver of a school bus which carries more than nine passengers must have a Class A licence."

Policy for Decades

One trustee noted some drivers here have not had annual medical examinations. Under the new policy, which makes use of a provision in the Public School Act, all school board employees including drivers have to prove every year their physical fitness.

A similar explanation was also given to Local 1-80 IWA officials at a recent meeting.

Trustee John Elford told the board the meeting with the union officers was friendly and the latter asked for more such meetings to discuss any future problems.

Board members feel tourists visiting this province should be made aware of B.C. rulings governing stopped school buses loading or unloading school children.

The department of highways will be asked to install signs at the B.C. border for the benefit of tourists.

The trustees also were confronted with an unusual but nevertheless important problem—the alighting of helicopters on school property or near schools. Trustee Pat Mason told the board a helicopter with an RCMP officer landed near Shawnigan Lake School to pick up documents from the detachment there. Proper arrangements should have been made by the RCMP. He said a telephone call to the principal from the headquarters would have been sufficient and the latter will be asked to act accordingly in future.

Two Bids Accepted

Construction soon will begin at Koksilah and Tansor Elementary schools under the referendum passed by taxpayers last year.

Bids from J. L. Peterson, Lake Cowichan, of $17,100 and $14,340 for a classroom and covered play area at the Koksilah School and for a classroom addition at Tansor School, respectively, were accepted subject to the final approval of the department of education.

The board was advised by the department tenders may be called for an actively room at Maple Bay Elementary School. In other matters, the board decided to take its fight for monthly education payments from Duncan and North Cowichan to the B.C. Trustees' Association.

The department of highways will be able to buy a strip of land for $50 near Cowichan Station Elementary School from the board for widening of Koksilah Road. A recently awarded fence around Ardenian

School for Retarded Children will discourage students of that school from leaving the premises.

It was learned conversion of the heating system in the Cowichan Senior Secondary School is expected to be carried out during this summer. Plans will be presented to the board for consideration by the end of June and tenders will be called following the board's decision.

Pharmacists Choose Woodland

NANAIMO—Courtney pharmacist R. E. Woodland has been elected president of the B.C. Pharmaceutical Association at the annual meeting. He succeeds D. J. S. Brown of Vancouver.

John McGovern of Vancouver was named vice-president. Elected to the association council for two years were B. H. Brown of Squamish, Frank Crawford of Vancouver and G. M. Stinson of Port Hammond.

Re-elected to the council were Mr. McGovern, S. H. Knott of Victoria, D. C. MacDonald of Cranbrook and B. H. Gant of Kelowna.

THREAT TO PUBLIC

The outgoing president and the Squamish pharmacist agreed that the indiscriminate sale of drugs without professional advice is a definite threat to public health.

"We're not worrying too much about people mixing patent medicines because it is remarkable the combination of drugs the human body will take," said Douglas Brown. "But we are concerned about the people under treatment who may take patent medicines on the side containing ingredients harmful to their condition."

Delegates were urged to exercise as much control as possible on all drugs and medicines. B. H. Brown said it is the pharmacist's duty to try to advise the customer on the best use of patent medicines, as well as looking after the prescriptions.

Troubled Mexican Ship Turns Up Off Victoria

The Mexican frigate Califorma, reported missing after bad weather and mechanical trouble, turned up late Friday in Juan De Fuca Strait off Victoria, more than a day behind schedule.

She was due in Vancouver Thursday for a maritime festival.

A navy spokesman said the ship was forced to take shelter in a small bay on the U.S. coast two or three days ago, because of mechanical trouble and bad weather. No messages were received while she was on her way up the coast.

Frigate as she came through the strait. One man mistook the Mexican flag for that of France.

"As soon as I saw her I knew it was a foreign warship," a B.C. Pilotage spokesman said.

ON HER WAY

"I sent the pilot boat out and notified the navy. The pilot went on board at 6:05 p.m. The frigate's now on her way to Vancouver."

Vancouver festival officials were scratching their heads when the frigate failed to arrive. Canadian and U.S. navies, Rescue Coordination Centre and harbor officials in Vancouver were unable to supply any information.

Three Die in B.C.

Blast of Air Fells Plane

PRINCETON (CP) — Three men died Friday when their light plane, apparently thrown out of control by hot air from a paving plant, crashed near the Hope-Princeton highway.

Police said they believe a strong updraft of air from containers of boiling tar caused the aircraft to plunge into the Stikine range 400 yards from the plant.

Earl Malley, the pilot, Bob Ford and Jack Wyllie, all of the Vancouver area, were killed instantly.

The accident occurred in heavy fog and witnesses said the pilot appeared to be banking to avoid a low hill when he passed over the Western Paving Company.

FOUR SEATER — They were returning to Vancouver in the four-seater, Mark 21 Mooney aircraft from Trail, in the Kootenays.

The little plane slammed into the ground near Allison Pass Summit, just west of here and about 115 miles east of Vancouver. The crash scene was 100 yards from the highway.

HEAVY DRIZZLE — Ron Jones, a tractor operator for the B.C. highways department, said visibility was poor when the crash came at 9:25 a.m. PDT. "There was fog around the treetops and a heavy drizzle. The pilot probably didn't see the trees until it was too late."

Jones and two other men saw the plane bank to make a turn then disappear behind the trees. The sound of the crash followed.

MINE MACHINERY — Malley, 48, was western representative for the Presto-Tile Electrical Company. Ford, also 48, was a Second World War RCAF veteran. He was district manager of the Jeffrey Manufacturing Company of Burnaby, manufacturers of mining machinery. Wyllie ran a sewing machine business.

Fee Hike Will 'Spur' Calls for Medicare

The Birds And The Birds

VANCOUVER (CP)—The National Research Council, which experiments with anything, hopes birds can take care of the birds at Vancouver International Airport.

The council said Friday it plans to use specially-trained falcons to keep airport runways clear of ducks, pheasants and seagulls.

Falcons have been used for centuries for hunting game.

Health Minister Martin said Friday a planned six per cent fee hike by B.C. doctors will accelerate demands for government medicare.

"Are the doctors doing everything they can to avoid government intervention when they do a thing like that?"

"What will the public reaction be when they absorb the knowledge that medical fees will increase six per cent?" Mr. Martin, whose stand on government medicare is that B.C. will participate in any federal plan, supported a recent decision by Medical Services Inc. to broaden the scope of its doctor-sponsored health plan.

"But when they raise fees, possibly out of reach, then the demand for government-sponsored medical schemes is going to increase."

Insulting, Says B.C. Court

Squire Told Off

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Court of Appeal saved the squire of Notley Abbey $4,500 Friday, but sent him away with sharp words.

The squire, Arnold Swanson, who went from circus barker and vacuum-cleaner salesman to a leisure life in Buckinghamshire, England, escaped paying all but $1,000 of a $7,500 divorce judgment.

B.C. Supreme Court ruled last year that Mr. Swanson owed the damages to James Leighton for running away with Mr. Leighton's wife in 1959.

Both Swanson and Mrs. Leighton obtained divorces from their spouses in Reno after leaving Vancouver. They married and took up residence in Oxford, England, with the three children of the Leighton marriage.

The squire drew a rebuke from the appeal court Friday after it was told of an "offer."

Refugee Helpers Spurn B.C. So B.C. Helps No Refugees

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

The undernourished people of the world will eat B.C. food or stay hungry so far as the Premier's Committee for World Relief is concerned.

Health Minister Martin, the committee's reluctant chairman, said Friday it isn't going to spend its $50,000 provincial grant feeding hungry people with food produced anywhere else.

He said relief organizations

refuse to buy in B.C. as a condition of receiving the committee's money.

Couldn't the committee buy B.C. products and send them to a relief organization for distribution?

"And then not get it to the people who need it," was the minister's reply. "You'd lose control."

How about the United Nations?

"They'd distribute it where they like and buy it where they like."

Also named a dame commander of OBE was Jean Conan Doyle, an air commander and director of the British Women's Air Force and daughter of novelist Arthur Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes.

Job Plan — Given By Grits

OTTAWA (CP)—The Liberal government unveiled its blueprint Friday for a high-level Economic Council of Canada to map out a planned route to economic growth and the highest possible level of employment.

The Commons authorized the government to present legislation to establish the council, then gave first reading to the formal bill spelling out what the council will do, how it will function and what its powers and membership will be.

THREE FULL-TIME — The government proposes to wipe out the National Productivity Council and create a brain trust of three full-time officers plus 25 other members on a part-time basis.

The National Productivity Council, consisting of 25 part-time members, was set up by the former Conservative government in 1961. It was to study methods of raising efficiency and production levels in industry.

The new council's job will be to plan the future in terms of economic growth, fullest possible employment and rising living standards.

Squeeze in Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — Pathet Lao forces reinforced by North Vietnamese troops gradually are squeezing the neutralist forces of Gen. Kong Le into a tighter corner in the Plain of Jars, reports reaching here said today.

There could be "nothing more stupid" now than to refuse the nuclear armament for the nuclear carriers on which the Conservatives had spent $1,000,000 of the taxpayers' money.

In the "next few months" the government would re-examine the nuclear bombing role of the RCAF air division in Europe.

Revenge Gained On Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson Friday turned down Canadian participation in the proposed NATO seaborne strategic nuclear force.

He did so the day after Livingston Merchant, U.S. special envoy, had come here for talks with Mr. Pearson and other government members on possible creation of a force of 25 surface ships armed with a total of 200 nuclear Polaris long-range missiles.

Mr. Pearson said in the Commons in concluding a debate which resulted in unanimous approval of establishment of a Commons defence committee: "I do not think it will be likely that we would wish to add to our existing responsibilities and commitments by participating in this kind of multi-lateral nuclear force."

"But this is a matter which will be given the consideration it deserves," he added.

PLAYS DiefENBAKER — Mr. Pearson spent more than an hour playing Opposition Leader Diefenbaker for denying that the previous Conservative government had committed Canada to a nuclear policy. He applied such terms as "deceitful nonsense," "an affront to anyone's intelligence" and "childish" the former prime minister's arguments.

HAD REVENGE — Mr. Pearson, with the loud support of his followers, had his revenge on Mr. Diefenbaker for the Jan. 20, 1958, Commons debate in which the then prime minister picked Mr. Pearson apart for proposing that the government resign and the Liberals resume office without an election.

BILLION SPENT — There could be "nothing more stupid" now than to refuse the nuclear armament for the nuclear carriers on which the Conservatives had spent $1,000,000 of the taxpayers' money.

Japanese Omit Key Idea

WASHINGTON (CP)—Japan Friday submitted to Canada and the United States the draft of a proposed new treaty to replace the current 10-year conservation convention protecting halibut and salmon in the North Pacific Ocean.

A statement issued by the conference said the Japanese draft omits the principle of abatement which Canada and the U.S. claim is vital and which the Japanese claim as "irrational" in its present form.

The three countries now are negotiating behind closed doors to prevent the current fisheries convention from collapsing, a development the Canadians claim could wreck the Canadian salmon industry.

Ominous Odors Linger in Profumo Scandal

By DOUG MARSHALL
Canadian Press

Former war minister John Profumo, much to his personal regret, is treating Britons to the richest dish of scandal in years.

See also Page 5.

When the last savory tidbit of sex and high-level deceit has been warmed over for the last time by a ghoulish popular press, certain ominous odors will still linger in the air.

The most important question is the effect Profumo's affair

with 21-year-old model Christine Keeler will have on the government and its calculations concerning the next election.

Prime Minister Macmillan, currently golfing in Scotland, is reported to be taking the matter calmly despite signs that the opposition intends to pin much of the blame on him.

Labor Leader Harold Wilson has indicated his party will skirt the personal issues and concentrate on security.

Little good is being said about Profumo himself. While other cabinet ministers of this century have been involved in public scandals, he is the first to be caught up in something so blatantly sordid and casual.

On top of this, there is a feeling that he behaved extremely badly by trying to cover his tracks, lying to Parliament and generally "not being a man about the business."

It is hard to estimate what the public reaction will be when the dust settles. On the one hand there is the sardonic comment heard in bars that, unlike other recent government scandals which have involved homosexuals, "at least this time it's a girl."

Other observers think Profumo's indiscretions have added weight to the criticism that the government has grown lax during its long term in power; that ministers are beginning to feel no one can touch them. The Conservatives are already under fire for turning Britain into what some Labor members say is a nation of loose-living materialists.

Profumo has shown that the "never had it so good" way of life can be rotten at the top, too.

Whether Macmillan is planning a fall or spring election, a careful reconsideration of policy is vital.

Knighthood for a Dancer High Honor for a Boxer

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth Friday bestowed the female equivalent of knighthood on prima ballerina Alicia Markova and diplomat Barbara Salt, who had both legs amputated after being appointed Britain's first woman ambassador.

Both women became dame commanders of the Order of the British Empire in the traditional list of honors issued to celebrate the Queen's official birthday.

There were 122 women on the list of 680 honorees—a list that included people prominent in the arts, politics, scholarship, science, sport and industry.

Also named a dame commander of OBE was Jean Conan Doyle, an air commander and director of the British Women's Air Force and daughter of novelist Arthur Conan Doyle, creator of Sherlock Holmes.
